seriously with the place based developmental role of universities In the international literature and policy there has been an increasing integration of the university with place based development especially in cities This volume weighs in on the debate by drawing attention to the place based roles and agency of South African universities in their local towns and cities It acknowledges that universities were given specific development roles in regions homelands and towns under apartheid and comments on why sub national place based development has not been a key theme in post apartheid higher education planning Given the developmental crisis in the country universities could be expected to play a more constructive and meaningful role in the development of their own precincts cities and regions But what should that role be Is there evidence that this is already occurring in South Africa despite the lack of a national policy framework What plans and programmes are in place and what is needed to expand the development agency of universities at the local level Who and what might be involved Where should the focus lie and who might benefit most and why Is there a need perhaps to approach the challenges of college towns secondary cities and metropolitan centers differently This book poses some of these questions as it considers the experiences of a number of South African universities including Wits Pretoria Nelson Mandela University and especially Fort Hare as one of its post centenary challenges

The emergent technoscientific New World Order is being legitimised through discourses on openness and inclusivity. The paradox is that openness implies vulnerability and insecurities, particularly where closure would offer shelter. While some actors including NGOs preach openness of African societies, Africans clamour for protection, restitution and restoration. Africans struggle for ownership and access to housing for national, cultural, religious, economic and social belonging that would offer them the necessary security and protection including protection from the global vicissitudes and matrices of power. In the presence of these struggles, to presuppose openness would be to celebrate vulnerability and insecurities. This book examines ways in which emergent technologies expose Africans and more generally peoples of the global south to political, economic, social, cultural and religious shocks occasioned by the colonality of the global matrices of power. It notes that there is the use by global elites of technologies to incite postmodern revolutions designed to compound the vicissitudes and imponderables in the already unsettled lives of people north and south. Particularly targeted by these technologies are African and other governments that do not cooperate in the fulfilment of the interests of the hegemonic global elites. The book is handy to students and practitioners in security.
