ALSO refer to Heinemann Student Workbook for:
Essential knowledge summary.

UNIT 2

Area of Study 1 – Adaptations of organisms

On completion of this unit the student should be able to explain and analyse the relationship between environmental factors, and adaptations and distribution of living things.

CHAPTER 13 – Environmental factors and adaptations

KEY KNOWLEDGE

- Environmental factors determine where organisms live
- Adaptations of organisms enable survival, reproduction, and use of resources
- Adaptations include structural, physiological and behavioural features

Challenge to survival

Organisms can only live in an environment which has conditions within its tolerance range.

The environment of an organism consists of abiotic (non-living) and biotic factors (living). A requirement in limited supply is called a limiting factor to the organisms survival. Distribution is where an organism lives.

Different organisms have different physiological, anatomical and behavioural adaptations (inherited characteristic) that enable them to survive.

Adaptation (evolutionary) different to 'adapt' (individual organism acclimatise).

Adaptations can be structural (eg. shell on turtle), physiological (eg. Sweating) or behavioural (eg. Fly south for the winter).
