Higher Education: Handbook of Theory and Research J.C. Smart, 2012-12-06 To recapitulate Greeks differ from Independents and from the academy s

value priorities but for the most part these differences derive from antecedent characteristics. Moreover, there are some grounds for speculating that these antecedent differences reflect fundamental temperamental differences: extraversion and gregariousness mediated by social interaction as opposed to interaction through ideas. Only to a limited degree does the Greek system appear to adversely affect the acquisition and assimilation of the academy's value priorities, i.e., students as a whole. Greek and Independent alike appear to become more independent, liberal, socially concerned, and culturally sophisticated by graduation. However, the Greek system's effect on the behavior of Greeks is more troubling: an effect largely mediated by the use and abuse of alcohol and the relative absence of direct institutional supervision. Assuming the retention of the Greek system, then, the promotion of the academy's agenda appears dependent on an understanding and accommodation of the personal characteristics of Greeks using appropriate pedagogical methods to advance the academy's educational objectives and both educational and administrative regulatory efforts to control the use and abuse of alcohol. With or without the Greek system, the advancement of the academy's agenda involves these considerations since the characteristics of students as a whole encompass the characteristics emphasized among Greeks.

Books in Print, 1994. Exploring Institutional Logics for Technology-Mediated Higher Education Neelam Dwivedi, 2019-03-19. This book articulates the complexities inherent in higher education's multifaceted response to the forces of mediatization or how institutions change when their social communication gets mediated by technology and introduces a novel perspective to comprehend them in a systematic way. By drawing on archival analysis and six organizational case studies, the author empirically traces the emergence of a cyber cultural institution within higher education. As these case studies demonstrate, this new institutional logic requires creativity, individual recognition, and an underlying platform powered by cyber technologies and digitization of content. Using an analytical lens this cyber cultural perspective answers many questions about why faculty refuse to adopt online education why students struggle with mediated teaching and what possibly could be done to take online education to its next level
