Evolution Education Re-considered Ute Harms, Michael J. Reiss, 2019-07-16 This collection presents research based interventions using existing knowledge to produce new pedagogies to teach evolution to learners more successfully whether in schools or elsewhere Success here is measured as cognitive gains as acceptance of evolution or an increased desire to continue to learn about it Aside from introductory and concluding chapters by the editors each chapter consists of a research based intervention intended to enable evolution to be taught successfully all these interventions have been researched and evaluated by the chapters authors and the findings are presented along with discussions of the implications The result is an important compendium of studies from around the world conducted both inside and outside of school The volume is unique and provides an essential reference point and platform for future work for the foreseeable future New Scientist, 2006

The Big Necessity Rose George, 2009-07-07 An extraordinary look at the stubborn problem of human waste disposal Among the best nonfiction books of the new millennium The New York Times Acclaimed as valuable and often entertaining Los Angeles Times The Big Necessity defies the taboo on bodily waste something common to all and as natural as breathing We prefer not to talk about it but we should even those of us who take care of our business in pristine sanitary conditions Disease spread by waste kills more people worldwide every year than any other single cause of death Even in America nearly two million people have no access to an indoor toilet Yet the subject remains unmentionable Moving from the underground sewers of Paris London and New York an infrastructure disaster waiting to happen to an Indian slum where ten toilets are shared by 60 000 people The Big Necessity breaks the silence revealing everything that matters about how people do and don't deal with their own waste With razor sharp wit and crusading urgency mixing levity with gravity Rose George has turned the subject we like to avoid into a cause with the most serious of consequences One smart book delving deep into the history and implications of a daily act that dare not speak its name Newsweek Makes a passionate argument for putting sanitation at the top of the world's development agenda Time With irreverence and pungent detail George breaks the embarrassed silence over the economic political social and environmental problems of human waste disposal Full of fascinating facts an intrepid erudite and entertaining journey through the public consequences of this most private behavior Publishers Weekly starred review

The Eureka Effect David N Perkins, 2001 From the taming of fire to the creation of the laser breakthrough thinking that is a sudden seemingly unaccountable moment of inspiration has shaped and advanced civilization In this sly tour de force Perkins explores the common logic behind breakthroughs across many fields Human Evolution P. J. Andrews, C. B. Stringer, 1989-09-29 The development of our ancestors is traced by fossil evidence of various ancestral groups in a survey that expands from man's earliest beginnings through the emergence of modern humans The Practice of Foreign Language Teaching Azamat Akbarov, 2015-10-05 The Practice of Foreign Language Teaching Theories and Applications is a collection of essays which will appeal to teachers of modern languages no matter the level of instruction

The volume analyzes the concepts of foreign language education and multicultural competence including the notion of the intercultural speaker. It also discusses the ways in which language education policy develops by comparing the theories and purposes of foreign language education. The essays collected here highlight the various different methods and approaches in language teaching and introduce more experienced teachers to new approaches and teaching ideas. The book will also provide language instructors with the theoretical background and practical solutions they need to decide which approaches materials and resources can and should be used in their L2 classrooms.

Human Evolution John L. Bradshaw, 2014-01-02

The last decade has seen an explosive burst of new information about human origins and our evolutionary status with respect to other species. We have long been considered unique as upright bipedal creatures endowed with language, the ability to use tools to think and introspect. We now know that other creatures may be more or less capable of similar behaviour and that these human capacities in many cases have long evolutionary trajectories. Our information about such matters comes from a diverse variety of disciplines including experimental and neuropsychology, primatology, ethology, archaeology, palaeontology, comparative linguistics and molecular biology. It is the interdisciplinary nature of the newly emerging information which bears upon one of the profoundest scientific human questions: our origin and place in the animal kingdom, whether unique or otherwise, which makes the general topic so fascinating to layperson, student and expert alike. The book attempts to integrate across a wide range of disciplines an evolutionary view of human psychology with particular reference to language, praxis and aesthetics. A chapter on evolution from the appearance of life to the earliest mammals is followed by one which examines the appearance of primates, hominids and the advent of bipedalism. There follows a more detailed account of the various species of Homo, the morphology and origin of modern H. sapiens sapiens as seen from the archaeological, palaeontological and molecular biological perspectives. The origins of art and an aesthetic sense in the Acheulian and Mousterian through to the Upper Palaeolithic are seen in the context of the psychology of art. Two chapters on language address its nature and realization centrally and peripherally: the prehistory and neuropsychology of speech and evidence for speech and/or language in our hominid ancestors. A chapter on tool use and praxis examines such behaviour in other species, primate and non-primate; the neurology of praxis and its possible relation to language. Encephalization and the growth of the brain phylogenetically and ontogenetically and its relationship to intellectual capacity leads on finally to a consideration of intelligence, social intelligence, consciousness and self-awareness. A final chapter reviews the issues covered. The book of around 70 000 words of text includes over 500 references, over half of which date from 1994 or later.
