Vitagenes in avian biology and poultry health Peter Surai, 2023-08-14. Commercial poultry production is associated with various types of stress leading to decrease of productive and reproductive performance and compromised health of growing chickens, parent birds as well as commercial layers. Stress adaptation is associated with various signaling pathways and is executed at the gene level. The term vitagenes refers to a group of redox sensitive genes that are involved in stress sensing and preserving cellular adaptive homeostasis. The vitagene family includes heat shock proteins, superoxide dismutase, glutathione and thioredoxin systems and sirtuins. The vitagenes are key players in redox signaling and redox homeostasis maintenance in birds, including poultry under commercial stress conditions of egg and meat production. Development of the vitagene concept became an important milestone in understanding molecular mechanisms of adaptation to stress. The goal of this book is to provide up to date information about the roles of vitagenes in avian biology and poultry health. Special emphasis is put on the role of vitagenes as an essential part of the redox homeostasis maintenance, stress adaptation and development of adaptive homeostasis. The book provides data to indicate that nutritional modulation of vitagenes is a new direction in nutritional sciences. Practical results of the successful usage of the vitagene concept in poultry production are also presented. This book is intended to be of practical importance to avian animal scientists, poultry producers, nutritionists and vets, students of biological and agricultural colleges and universities. It can also be interesting for researchers in areas related to physiology, biochemistry, nutrition, ecology, environmental sciences, evolutionary biology, etc.

Regulatory Toxicology in the European Union Tim Marrs, Kevin Woodward, 2018-02-21. Consumer and environmental protection depend on the careful regulation of all classes of chemicals. Toxicology is the key science used to evaluate safety and so underpins regulatory decisions on chemicals. With the growing body of EU legislation involved in chemical regulation, there is a concomitant need to understand the toxicological principles underlying safety assessments. Regulatory Toxicology in the European Union is the first book to cover regulatory toxicology specifically in Europe. It addresses the need for a wider understanding of the principles of regulatory toxicology and their application and presents the relationship between toxicology and legislative processes in regulating chemical commodities across Europe. This title has a broad scope covering historical and current chemical regulation in Europe, the role of European agencies and institutions and also the use of toxicology data for important classes of chemicals including human and veterinary medicines, animal feed and food additives, biocides, pesticides and nanomaterials. This book is therefore extremely pertinent and timely in the toxicology field at present. This book is an essential reference for regulatory authorities, industrialists, academics, undergraduates and postgraduates working within safety and hazards toxicology, the biological sciences and the medicinal and pharmaceutical sciences across the European Union

Recent advancements in microbe-pesticide interaction: A smart-soil bioremediation approach, 2nd edition

Pankaj Bhatt, Shaohua Chen, Cormac Murphy, 2024-06-19

The increasing use and the continuous development of pesticides are required to maintain sufficient global food production. The pesticide residues and their biotic and abiotic breakdown products may be harmful to the environment and may leach into waterways; thus, it is crucial that the interactions of pesticides with microorganisms are deeply understood at all levels. Pesticides reach the soil via direct and indirect routes. The fate of the pesticides in the soil is affected by chemical, physical, and microbiological factors. Microbial degradation of pesticides in soil is possible owing to the diverse metabolic capabilities of the microorganisms present; thus, indigenous microbes act as biocatalysts for the remediation of the pesticides from the environment. The research topic will cover novel insights into microbial pesticide degradation with specific attention to the microbe-pesticide interactions in soil. To date, researchers have focused on the degradation of pesticides using indigenous microbes with different degradation rates. There is scant information about the degradation intermediates, metabolic pathways, enzymes, and complete set of factors involved in the microbes inhabiting the pesticides-contaminated soil. Therefore, this Research Topic aims to contribute to the understanding of the role of microbes in pesticide degradation in soil. Since pesticide exposure may result in stress responses in the microbial population of the soil, there is also a need to know about the impact of pesticides on the microbial cell structure, membrane transporters, cellular content, metabolic pathways, and gene expression. We are interested in reports of novel metabolic pathways, expression of the key genes in response to pesticide exposure, and the changes in microbial physiology caused by pesticide exposure. The removal of the pesticides from the soil requires smart microbial methods that can reduce the pesticides concentration in a short time. The development of the smart bioremediation methods includes the direct application of the potential screened microbial strains and their enzymes. The immobilized microbial strains and their enzymes can be used for the rapid removal of the toxic pesticides from the soil environment. In addition, engineering of the microbial consortia can be developed as the potential smart bioremediation tool. Papers on single isolates or microbial communities are welcome, as are reports of novel genes, enzymes, or metabolites that might be used as markers of soil contamination. We would especially welcome manuscripts describing the application and development of smart soil bioremediation approaches that could be beneficial for the treatment of large-scale contaminated agricultural and industrial soils. The research topic is of immediate interest to scientists and policy makers, and Frontiers in Microbiology is an ideal forum for a collection of novel, high-impact reports. The following themes are welcome, but not limited to: Novel advancements in the microbe-pesticide interactions to clean the pesticide-contaminated soil; High-throughput screening of the potential bacterial, fungi, and algae strains for the removal of pesticides from the contaminated soil; Smart soil bioremediation using indigenous microbial cultures and their purified enzymes; Microbial enzymes: a smart tool for bioremediation of the soil; Engineering of the microbial consortia for the complete pesticides removal and resource recovery.

Conceptualizing Plant-Based Nutrition Ramesh S. V., Shelly Praveen, 2022-10-10 This book deliberates on the various aspects of plant based nutrition. Plant based nutrition has numerous potential health benefits as it is low on calories nevertheless high on nutrient density and satiety and also nutrient supplementation makes them wholesome diets. Starting with the importance of biodiversity contributing to the nutrition, the book discusses the development or utilization of nutrient dense crops, foods with their bioavailability properties and health effects. Further, it deals with the enrichment of micronutrients through bio fortification, fortification, the role of food matrix and nutrient bioavailability, including the role of plant based milk alternatives. The linkage between food and health is also being discussed in the context of anti nutritional factors, metabolic fate of the food and genomics. Finally, the implications of next gen biotech crops and food safety issues imperative to define the concept of safe nutrition are discussed. With contributions from plant nutrition experts, this book serves as a one stop reference for plant scientists, food technologists and nutritionists looking to understand the concept of plant based nutrition and its linkage with human health.
