Key Operation Impacts and Mitigation Measures

1. Check the electrical wiring connecting the output units of the system to physical storage.
2. Check the air flow block switches and weights for the furnace.

The following tests shall be performed with care to prevent damage to the machine or injury to personnel. Proper functioning of the system requires successful completion of these tests before operating the machine.

If the operator cannot use the least-favorable basis representing the known costs, he/she has an accurate output property: input the least favorable basis. The operator will be progressively using the known cost basis, since they will be updating the Q -function and hence the property. If the LMF is not an MCF-A system, it is not favorable property, since the not least-favorable will not achieve the not worst Q in the suitable state (system for the MCF-A system), and will not lock the costs (possibly) into a, therefore not, and not best.

Check the grill has started to light and the grill has started to cook. Turn off the grill when the food is cooked.

- Stability of the weight attached to the unit is an important criterion. When the weight is fixed, the audible alarm for the LHM or optional audible alarm for the optional MCA system should sound, and the unit should flash alarm light through light.
- Stability near the main beam and handling is used to ensure a permanent two-point connection. When the load handling device lifts the weight, the audible alarm should sound, the unit should flash alarm light through light and the motion of the load handling device should be stopped. Lower the load handling device slightly to position near the connection.
- Stability (vertical) (horizontal): The device is created by a permanent two-point connection. When the load handling device lifts the weight, the audible alarm should sound, the unit should flash alarm light through light and the device (horizontal and vertical) should be stopped. Lower the load handling device slightly to approximate this condition.

▶ FOLLOW-UP

If the light and siren alarm is not function as described and the alarm components are not stopped, the system is not working properly. The malfunction shall be corrected before operating the alarm.

- a. If the crane is equipped with a boom extension that is designed and meant to work, repeat the test procedure for the boom extension at the same weight.
