

Organization of a Research Paper:

Introduction

A good introduction is relatively short. It tells why the reader should find the paper interesting, explains why the author carried out the research, and gives the background the reader needs to understand and judge the paper.

Specifically, the Introduction defines the nature and extent of the problems studied, relates the research to previous work (usually by a brief review of the literature clearly relevant to the problem), explains the objectives of investigation, and defines any specialized terms or abbreviations to be used in what follows. Remember that the Introduction leads logically to, and clearly states, the hypothesis or principal theme of the paper.

The Introduction should be relatively brief; most journals recommend less than 500 words. Avoid repetition: do not repeat the Abstract in the Introduction (and Introduction in the Discussion). Do not go into an extensive literature review; two to four most relevant and recent citations should be adequate to corroborate a statement. Do not repeat well-known facts nor state the obvious. For example, it is disappointing that even now, i.e., after more than 30 years of concerted efforts in scientific agroforestry and a large volume of literature in the subject, some manuscripts—and, interestingly, some editors—insist on providing a definition of agroforestry in any article on that subject! The Introduction section also may use different tenses: justification and motivation of the study is presented in present tense ("Soils store relatively large amounts of carbon in terrestrial ecosystems."), whereas the review of literature is presented in past tense ("Studies showed that ..."), or in present perfect tense if it is common knowledge ("Studies have shown that ..."). The objective is written in past tense ("The objective of the current study was ..."). Different journals follow different norms and styles. Some want discussion of literature in the Introduction while some want it in the Discussion section. Some journals require a brief account of the Materials and Methods to be included in the Introduction section, and some may want even the important conclusions presented in the Introduction section, although that tendency is now disappearing.

Mastering Research Methodology: A Comprehensive Guide Dr. Poonam Bhimrao Waghmare,Prof. (Capt.) Lata Kumar,Dr. Shabana Bi Abdul Rehman Khatik,Mr. Sushil Kumar Saraswat,2024-12-23 Mastering Research Methodology A Comprehensive Guide is a meticulously crafted textbook that offers an in depth exploration of the entire research process. The book is organised into ten chapters each addressing key aspects of research methodology and is tailored to provide both theoretical and practical knowledge for successful research projects. The book begins with an introduction to the concept of research emphasising its importance and providing insights into the various types of research approaches. It discusses the critical role of research design guiding the reader through the process of selecting appropriate designs based on the nature of the research problem. The literature review chapter encourages an understanding of existing research aiding in the identification of research gaps. Data collection methods and sampling techniques are given special attention offering a balanced discussion of primary vs secondary data qualitative vs quantitative methods and the different types of sampling techniques. The book provides a clear distinction between the various data analysis techniques including both descriptive and inferential statistics and explains how to utilise statistical software tools such as SPSS and R. Validity and reliability are also central themes in this guide ensuring that readers understand how to safeguard the integrity of their research findings. The final chapters cover advanced research techniques and tackle common research challenges offering solutions to problems such as bias data collection issues and ethical dilemmas. This comprehensive guide equips readers with the knowledge and skills needed to confidently navigate the complexities of research methodology and produce high quality research work.

The Essentials of Effective Written Communication for Young Researchers and Tertiary Students Laura Cheng Sue Sen B.comn, 2022-05-16. The scientific article must be written in a scientific format and may seem confusing for tertiary students and young researchers especially for the beginning science writer due to its rigid structure which is so different from writing humanities. One of the reasons for using this format is that it is a means of efficiently communicating scientific findings to a broad community of scientists in a uniform manner. Writing a technical article or research paper is a challenging endeavour for students and young researchers. Publishing your first technical article or research paper requires observation of some essential guidelines. Hence the purpose of this book is to provide basic guidelines to tertiary students and young researchers using this user friendly format to help in writing a scientific article. This book focuses on the essential steps for the publication of a technical article and research paper for tertiary students and young researchers.
