THE MEDIEVAL EUROPEAN FEUDAL SYSTEM History Reading

At the end of the Western Roman Empire in 476 C.E., Europe entered a period known as the Middle Ages. This 1,000-year era in European history is characterized by population growth, particularly in urban centers, in addition to decreases in trade, literature, and cultural achievements. Intertribes were marked by peace, and others by consistent warfare, plagues, social unrest, and revolts. Yet, one consistency of the era was that the lack of a strong central government in Europe created a sense of disorder with limited or no laws and protections. Therefore, in order to retain their power and wealth, lords and nobles created the feudal system, a system of reciprocal military and economic obligations that defined much of the way of life during the Middle Ages. It should be understood that feudalism was not applied uniformly across the entire period, as differences in laws and customs varied across both time and place. Furthermore, as differences in laws and customs varied across both time and place, the concept of feudalism as a single system is not in use by those who lived under the system, but instead developed as a concept of feudalism exists; therefore, academics frequently disagree on a precise definition of the system.
