High School Bottle Rocket Project:

Integrating Science, Technology, Engineering, and Mathematics Léonie J. Rennie, Grady Jane Venville, John William Wallace, 2012 How can curriculum integration of school science with the related disciplines of technology engineering and mathematics STEM enhance students skills and their ability to link what they learn in school with the world outside the classroom Featuring actual case studies of teachers attempts to integrate their curriculum their reasons for doing so how they did it and their reflections on the outcomes this book encourages science educators to consider the purposes and potential outcomes of this approach and raises important questions about the place of science in the school curriculum It takes an honest approach to real issues that arise in curriculum integration in a range of education contexts at the elementary and middle school levels The clear documentation and critical analysis of the contribution of science in curriculum integration its implementation and its strengths and weaknesses will assist teachers science educators and researchers to understand how this approach can work to engage students and improve their learning as well as how it does not happen easily and how various factors can facilitate or hinder successful integration Labnet Richard Ruopp, Shahaf Gal, Brian Drayton, Meghan Pfister, 2012-10-12 Connected by a computer telecommunications network ninth graders from eight high schools scattered thousands of miles across Alaska work together building a robot submarine to gather samples from the floor of Prince William Sound This is high school science as some teachers and educational reformers today envision it centered on student projects that encourage learning by doing supported by modern technology enriched by collaboration among students and teachers both face to face and far apart This example is drawn from LabNet a three year effort funded by the National Science Foundation The project was conducted by Technical Education Research Centers TERC a nonprofit educational organization dedicated to improving mathematics and science education Eventually reaching 562 teachers in 37 states Puerto Rico and American Samoa LabNet had a direct impact on their classroom practice In a follow up evaluation the majority said they had assigned their students more projects and had used LabNet s telecommunications network to exchange project ideas with other teachers This book is the story of LabNet as told by its editors with 14 additional essays on science projects both theoretical and practical by LabNet teachers and TERC staff Inquiry and Problem Solving, 1999
