

INTRODUCTION

WHAT IS Safe-NET™

Safe-NET is an advanced, electronic system for monitoring or controlling case temperatures in one or more locations. It will help you ensure continuous, reliable refrigeration and safer, fresher foods, 24 hours a day.

The Safe-NET system is composed of sensors, harnesses, control modules, display modules, relay modules and a power supply.

Typical Safe-NET™ Installation

Safe-NET technology provides an ideal system for verifying and maintaining compliance with Federal Department of Agriculture (FDA) and National Sanitation Foundation (NSF) regulations. It uses a standard communication protocol compatible with many third party systems to enable communication with a PC.

Temperature Monitoring

Safe-NET lets you monitor temperatures in up to 10 different areas of each case: discharge air, return air, product temperatures, coil inlet and outlet temperatures, etc. Temperature readings are logged for later review. The system sends an alarm if temperatures exceed predefined limits.

COMPONENTS

All components of the Safe-NET system (displays, sensors, and control modules) are factory installed. A single case-to-case plug-in connector is all that is required for field installation.

Display Module

The display module is a slim four-digit binary coded decimal LED unit which mounts in the case fascia panel. It lets you check temperatures at a glance and performs a variety of other monitoring and control functions via push-buttons or the hand-held controller.

Up to 10 sensors can be connected to each display module.

Typical Safe-NET™ Sensor Harness

Typical Safe-NET™ Hand-Held Controller

Typical Safe-NET™ Power Supply

Typical Safe-NET™ Relay Module

Typical Safe-NET™ Power Relay

Digital Sensors

Up to 10 digital sensors can be installed in each case with a single cable connection. There are 14 types of sensors. Each sensor has an electronic identifier so it can be recognized by the display module. This eliminates the need for separate wiring. Sensors in each case are hardwired together to a single wire leading to the display module. Sensors are designed for rugged durability. Should a sensor fail, it can be replaced.

Optional Wireless Hand-held Controller and/or PC Control

The wireless controller communicates with the display unit through an infrared sensor. This allows setup and queries which can also be performed via PC over the network.

If the wireless controller is not available, it is possible to program the controller directly with buttons located on the display module.

Solid State Relay Board

A solid state relay board will have multiple (4, 5 or 2) relays.

Real Time Clock

The real time clock (RTC) is an option available to the Safe-NET control. Normally, the clock is manually set upon case startup. If power is lost for any period of time up to 10 days, the RTC will provide real time to the Safe-NET control upon restoration of power.

Typical Safe-NET™ Real Time Clock

SELF-CONTAINED CASE

Safe-NET components are factory installed. Once power is supplied to the case as specified in the case's installation and service manual, Safe-NET settings are ready to be selected.

Settings are retained when power is interrupted. Thus, a self-contained case can be moved without re-entering selected settings.

Startup of a new Self-Contained case is quite simple:

1. Verify case type selected.
2. Set the clock.
3. Check or set the temperature set-point.
