

CUNEiFORM

Write Like a Sumerian!

Cuneiform is noted as the oldest form of writing, systems were developed in Mesopotamia as a method of communication. Cuneiform included a combination of pictographs, symbols representing entire words and phonograms (symbols representing a syllable or sound). Early Sumerian writing began as a pictographic system with simple pictures and symbols, which represented a whole word or idea. Sumerians developed pictures of objects and animals to represent the words for those objects and animals. Over time, Sumerian Cuneiform symbols became more abstract, representing sounds. The evolution of the phonetic system of writing provided a more efficient way to write. This was a revolutionary development because it allowed Sumerians to write words that could not be represented by a picture. The evolution of the phonetic system of writing provided a more efficient way to write. This was a revolutionary development because it allowed Sumerians to write words that could not be represented by a picture.

One symbol is found to represent a picture because the two words sounded alike. This is the same strategy in the alphabet used today. The Cuneiform system of writing developed over a period of 100 years and eventually grew. Additional symbols, by 3000 BC, the Sumerians had developed a complete system of writing.

Cuneiform was used when carved into clay tablets with fluted reeds. Some tablets were used to record or they were recycled as parchment. Many of the clay tablets found in Mesopotamia were used as a record-keeping system for the government. Some tablets were used as a record-keeping system for the government.
