Can you explain the difference between object oriented programming and functional programming

Example Answer Object oriented programming OOP and functional programming FP are two different paradigms for organizing and structuring code In OOP programs are organized around objects which encapsulate data and behaviour Objects interact with each other through methods and messages and inheritance and polymorphism are key concepts for code reuse and extensibility In contrast FP emphasizes functions as first class citizens treating them as data that can be passed as arguments returned from other functions and composed together FP encourages immutability pure functions and declarative programming style which can lead to more concise modular and composable code While OOP focuses on state and behaviour encapsulation FP focuses on transformations and compositions of data

How do you approach debugging and troubleshooting when encountering a software issue

Example Answer When encountering a software issue I follow a systematic approach to debugging and troubleshooting to identify the root cause and implement a solution I start by reproducing the issue and gathering as much information as possible including error messages log files and user feedback I then analyse the code and review the relevant documentation to understand the expected behaviour and potential sources of the problem Next I use debugging tools such as breakpoints logging statements and code profiling to trace the execution flow and pinpoint the exact location of the issue Once I've identified the cause of the problem I develop a plan to address it which may involve fixing bugs in the code optimizing performance or updating dependencies Throughout the process I communicate regularly with my team members and stakeholders providing updates on my progress and seeking input and feedback as needed By approaching debugging and troubleshooting methodically and collaboratively I ensure that software issues are resolved efficiently and effectively
