decades by the educational behavioural and neurosciences integrating cognitive developmental and socioeconomic approaches to deal with the problems children face in learning mathematics The neurocognitive mechanisms and the cognitive processes underlying acquisition of arithmetic abilities and their significance for education have been the subject of intense research in the last few decades but the most part of this research has been conducted in non applied settings and there s still a deep discrepancy between the level of scientific knowledge and its implementation into actual educational settings Now it s time to bring the results from the laboratory to the classroom Apart from bringing the theoretical discussions to educational settings the volume presents a wide range of methods for early detection of children with risks in mathematics learning and strategies to develop effective interventions based on innovative cognitive test instruments It also provides insights to translate research knowledge into public policies in order to address socioeconomic issues And it does so from an international perspective dedicating a whole section to the cultural diversity of mathematics learning difficulties in different parts of the world All of this makes the International Handbook of Mathematical Learning Difficulties an essential tool for those involved in the daily struggle to prepare the future generations to succeed in the global knowledge society

Mandarin Competence of Chinese-English Bilingual Preschoolers Hock Huan Goh,2016-11-03 This book provides readers with a detailed sketch of the Mandarin competence of Chinese children in Singapore from different home language backgrounds Their Mandarin competence is defined in terms of lexical diversity syntactic complexity and code switching tendency The findings presented show that there are statistical differences in lexical diversity and syntactic complexity among the compared groups of children and these differences in linguistic competence were found to be positively correlated to increased Mandarin exposure at home They also demonstrate that there are statistical differences in code switching tendency among the groups of children compared which were found to be negatively correlated to increased exposure to Mandarin at home A general relationship between home language exposure and Mandarin competence was established although this relationship was found to be volatile especially among children who are more bilingually exposed This book shares these findings with linguists language educators and language policymakers both local and international Hearings Before the Subcommittee on Elementary, Secondary, and Vocational Education of the Committee on Education and Labor, House of Representatives, Ninety-fifth Congress, First Session, on H.R. 15, to Extend for Five Years Certain Elementary, Secondary, and Other Education Programs ...: Family educational rights and privacy act of 1974 United States.
