Hartley,2012-06-06 This three novel

collection first published in 1944 explores a brother and sister's coming of age and changing relationship in the English countryside and Venice. The three books gathered together as Eustace and Hilda explore a brother and sister's lifelong relationship. Hilda, the older child, is both self-sacrificing and domineering as puritanical as she is gorgeous. Eustace is a gentle, dreamy pleasure-loving boy. The two siblings could hardly be more different, but they are also deeply devoted. And yet as Eustace and Hilda grow up and seek to go their separate ways in a world of power and position, money and love, their relationship is marked by increasing pain. L. P. Hartley's much-loved novel, the magnum opus of one of twentieth-century England's best writers, is a complex and spellbinding work, a comedy of upper-class manners, a study in the subtlest nuances of feeling, a poignant reckoning with the ironies of character and fate. Above all, it is about two people who cannot live together or apart, about the ties that bind and break.

Even her beloved town of Trinity is changing. The 1830s Pennsylvania town, having mushroomed in size and population, is becoming an important agricultural and economic center for the region, and soon a canal will connect it even more to the outside world. It is a season that will set the course for the rest of her life. Martha will need every ounce of confidence, courage, and faith she possesses to overcome the obstacles that will make her life far more challenging and difficult than she can dare to imagine.

During the time she underwent psychoanalysis by Sigmund Freud, Friedman, English and Women's Studies, U of Wisconsin at Madison, presents the letters as giving an alternative view of Freud's therapeutic style, as well as offering portraits both of late 19th-century Vienna and of the literary circle. H. D. was part of which included Havelock Ellis, Kenneth MacPherson, and Ezra Pound. Annotation copyrighted by Book News Inc. Portland, OR

Modernism and Mourning Patricia Rae, 2007 The essays in Modernism and Mourning examine the work of mourning in modernist literature or more precisely its propensity for resisting this work Drawing from recent developments in the theory and cultural history of mourning its contributors explore the various ways in which modernist writers repudiate Freud's famous injunction to mourners to work through their grief endorsing instead a resistant or melancholic mourning that shapes both their themes and their radical experiments with form The emerging picture of the pervasive influence of melancholic mourning in modernist literature casts new light on longstanding critical arguments especially those about the politics of modernism It also makes clear the pertinence of this literature to the present day in which the catastrophic losses of 9/11 of retaliatory war of racially motivated genocide of the AIDS epidemic have made the work of mourning a subject of widespread interest and debate Patricia Rae is Head of the Department of English at Queen's University

H.D. and Modernist Religious Imagination Elizabeth Anderson, 2013-08-01 Exploring the intersection of religious sensibility and creativity in the poetry and prose of the American modernist writer H.D. this volume explores the nexus of the religious the visionary the creative and the material Drawing on original archival research and analyses of newly published and currently unpublished writings by H.D. Elizabeth Anderson shows how the poet's work is informed by a range of religious traditions from the complexities and contradictions of Moravian Christianity to a wide range of esoteric beliefs and practices H.D. and Modernist Religious Imagination brings H.D.'s texts into dialogue with the French theorist Hélène Cixous whose attention to writing imagination and the sacred has been a neglected but rich critical and theological resource In analysing the connection both writers craft between the sacred the material and the creative this study makes a thoroughly original contribution to the emerging scholarly conversation on modernism and religion and the debate on the interrelation of the spiritual and the material within the interdisciplinary field of literature and religion
