of Life Frank A. De La Rosa, 2010-05-27 I had always thought of writing a book since I came to the United States I always had my journal with me and jotted down whatever came to my mind when I thought about it Tomorrow comes tomorrow goes and nothing much had been written in my journal As time went by I forgot all about my journal I was busy with life life around the clock that's going to work and raising children That's what life in the United States was when you're raising a family However as we all knew time flies The children grew big They finished college They run their own lives and have a family of their own They have children who are my grandchildren And life therefore was fulfilled And life goes on Now comes retirement And time is not a problem anymore Then my memory goes back when I had always thought of writing a book Now I have the time Some questions came to my mind What shall I write What will be the title of my book My mind was racing with so many titles and I could not decide which one would be on top of the list I prayed and offered my prayer to the Divine Providence that the first thought that would come to my mind would be the chosen title for my book And that is A Touch of Life This is how my title came to be A Touch of Life is in a way my autobiography or you can call it a memoir It is a collection of short stories that happened during my growing years in the most remote island of the Philippines during the wartime years in the Pacific after the bombing of Pearl Harbor on December 7 1941 and several more years after that My young mind was able to capture and remember the atrocity of that war War was never good at any place and at any time Even now I still have some nightmares during those dark days when the Japanese invaded the Philippines We were infiltrated everywhere by Japanese from Manila to the provinces and to the town and villages My hometown was no exception When General Douglas MacArthur returned to the Philippines as he promised that was the time when we were finally liberated from the Japanese The Japanese surrendered All the Filipinos were thankful and overjoyed After the war life was a struggle Every family had to start a new life The kids were behind in their studies Everything was scarce Diseases were very rampant and no medical help was yet available Life was very hurting and difficult However my family never lost hope We kept our faith strong We knew our creator would never abandon us We knew that from a distance God was watching his creations with A Touch of Life in our war torn hometown of Panganiban All these stories of long ago would have been forgotten in memories of long ago and gone with the howling winds of time without me sharing this book with you This book is my legacy to my family my children grandchildren and to all the people of the world that poverty is never permanent never a reason for unhappiness and is never a hindrance to success Poverty is only a way to taste the real meaning of life Yet some will say that God is putting us through trials when we experience poverty For me experiencing poverty helped me become a better person I became more compassionate kinder and had empathy to strangers and other people in need I remembering some thought in the past that God helps those who help themselves Reflecting on what happened to me this thought was a part of my life What if I didn't finish high school What if I didn't I didn't graduate as a valedictorian What if I didn't finish college Without attaining all these will I have ever moved forward to a much better life I don't think so For more information please visit <http://www.frankadelarosabook.com>
