CORN CHRONICLES

THE JOURNEY FROM PLATE TO POOP

How the Digestive System Works

When you eat, food enters your mouth. Your teeth and tongue help break it down into smaller pieces. Saliva, which contains enzymes, starts the digestion process. Food then travels down your esophagus to your stomach. In the stomach, stomach acid and enzymes continue to break down the food. From the stomach, food moves into the small intestine, where most of the digestion and absorption of nutrients occurs. The small intestine is long and coiled, allowing for a lot of time to break down food. Finally, food moves into the large intestine, where water is absorbed and the remaining waste is prepared for elimination.

Breaking Down is Hard to Do

Digestion is a complex process that involves many different organs and enzymes. Each part of the digestive system has a specific job to do, and they all work together to break down food into nutrients that your body can use. Without a healthy digestive system, you wouldn't be able to get the energy and nutrients you need to live.

Let's Process This

Now that you know how the digestive system works, you can start to think about how you can keep it healthy. Eating a diet rich in fiber, staying hydrated, and exercising regularly can all help keep your digestive system in good shape. So, let's process this: a healthy digestive system is key to a healthy body!
