Family Communication about Genetics Clara L. Gaff, Carma L. Bylund, 2010 Genetics is in all senses a family affair The diagnosis of a genetic condition affects not only the patient and biological family members who may themselves be at risk but also family more generally as support may be sought from those considered kin and who may or may not be at risk themselves It is considered best practice in genetic consultations to explore who will be informed within the family when a genetic condition or risk is diagnosed particularly when the health of other family members is at risk There is little guidance or consensus on how to achieve the implicit goal of informed family members while respecting patient confidentiality however There is a need for practitioners to be aware of the dynamics of family communication and to have guidance about how they may sensitively facilitate communication about genetics within families This handbook facilitates the development of clinical practices relating to family communication about genetics Relevant theories of family communication are summarized and related to a clinical genetics milieu and from this frameworks for practitioners are presented A book of this nature is particularly timely as the completion of the Human Genome Project will result in an unprecedented amount of information about genetic constitution and health risks becoming available to individuals and their families The presence of a potentially genetic condition in a family is not a new phenomenon However the growth in testing for genetic conditions common complex conditions and variants that may influence health as well as drug metabolism means that a greater number of individuals will face decisions about communicating this information to their relatives Many health professionals in all levels of health care will be confronted with issues of responsibility and practice in family communication about genetic information as they become providers of this testing

Invalid Modernism Michael Davidson, 2019-02-14 Invalid Modernism contributes to an intersectional moment in disability studies by looking at modernist aesthetics through a defamiliar body It also offers an intersectional understanding of modernism by studying the representation of physical and cognitive difference during a period marked by progressive reforms in health labor and welfare Readings of texts by Henry James Samuel Beckett Virginia Woolf William Carlos Williams James Joyce Djuna Barnes Oscar Wilde F T Marinetti Jean Toomer an opera by Alexander Zemlinsky and paintings and constructions by dadaists and surrealists are set against the historical developments in sexology medical discourse and the pseudo sciences of eugenics and anthropometry Modernist works are well known for challenging formal features of narration and representation but it is seldom observed that this challenge has often been enabled by figures of shell shocked veterans tubercular heroines blind soothsayers invalid aesthetes and neurasthenic women Such figures complicate an aesthetics of autonomy by which modernism is often understood Since its evolution in the eighteenth century aesthetics has been seen in terms of judgments based on detached appreciation What begins as a highly privative sensate response to an object or natural formation results in a disinterested judgment about the value of that response By looking at modernist aesthetics through a disability optic Invalid Modernism attempts to restore the missing body to aesthetics by disclosing a structure of feeling around dramatic changes in modernity These changes are registered on and through the bodies and minds of figures considered in medical discourse of the period as invalid citizens and subjects
