Homing Ji-Yeon O. Jo, 2017-11-30 Millions of ethnic Koreans have been driven from the Korean Peninsula over the course of the region's modern history Emigration was often the personal choice of migrants hoping to escape economic and political hardship but it was also enforced or encouraged by governmental relocation and migration projects in both colonial and postcolonial times The turning point in South Korea's overall migration trajectory occurred in the late 1980s and early 1990s when the nation's increased economic prosperity and global visibility along with shifting geopolitical relationships between the First World and Second World precipitated a migration flow to South Korea. Since the early 1990s South Korea's foreign resident population has soared more than 3 000 percent. Homing investigates the experiences of legacy migrants, later generation diaspora Koreans who return to South Korea from China, the Commonwealth of Independent States and the United States. Unlike their parents or grandparents they have no firsthand experience of their ancestral homeland. They inherited an imagined homeland through memories, stories, pictures and traditions passed down by family and community or through images disseminated by the media. When diaspora Koreans migrate to South Korea they confront far more than a new living situation; they must navigate their own shifting emotions as their expectations for their new homeland and its expectations of them confront reality. Everyday experiences and social encounters, whether welcoming or humiliating, all contribute to their sense of belonging in the South. Homing addresses some of the most vexing and pressing issues of contemporary transnational migration: citizenship, cultural belonging, language and family relationships, and highlights their affective dimensions. Using accounts gleaned through interviews, author Ji Yeon Jo situates migrant experiences within the historical context of each diaspora. Her book is the first to analyze comparatively the migration experiences of ethnic Koreans from three diverse diaspora whose presence in South Korea and ongoing relationships with diaspora homelands have challenged and destabilized existing understandings of Korean peoplehood.

The Preparation of Teachers of English as an Additional Language around the World Nihat Polat, Laura Mahalingappa, Hayriye Kayi-Aydar, 2021-08-09. This book fills a critical gap in a neglected area in current educational research: international teacher education. It focuses on the preparation of teachers of English as an additional language (EAL) in several world regions. The book consists of chapters by researchers in well established teacher education programs in 11 countries: Brazil, Canada, China, Finland, Greece, New Zealand, Russia, Saudi Arabia, South Korea, Turkey, and the United States of America. It takes a cross national comparative approach around four major focus areas: policy, research, curriculum and practice, offering critical implications that can help improve EAL teacher education programs in different parts of the world. Teacher education is an area that has great potential for international cross pollination of ideas and actions, and this book represents an important first step along this road.

A typology of questions in Northeast Asia and beyond Andreas Hölzl, 2018-08-29 This study investigates the distribution of linguistic and specifically structural diversity in Northeast Asia NEA defined as the region north of the Yellow River and east of the Yenisei In particular it analyzes what is called the grammar of questions GQ i e those aspects of any given language that are specialized for asking questions or regularly combine with these The bulk of the study is a bottom up description and comparison of GQs in the languages of NEA The addition of the phrase and beyond to the title of this study serves two purposes First languages such as Turkish and Chuvash are included despite the fact that they are spoken outside of NEA since they have ties to or even originated in the region Second despite its focus on one area the typology is intended to be applicable to other languages as well Therefore it makes extensive use of data from languages outside of NEA The restriction to one category is necessary for reasons of space and clarity and the process of zooming in on one region allows a higher resolution and historical accuracy than is usually the case in linguistic typology The discussion mentions over 450 languages and dialects from NEA and beyond and gives about 900 glossed examples The aim is to achieve both a cross linguistically plausible typology and a maximal resolution of the linguistic diversity of Northeast Asia
