Biomarkers in Drug Hypersensitivity José A. G. Agúndez, Silvia Selinski, Emanuela Corsini, Klaus Golka, Elena García-Martín, 2017-07-25 Biomarkers especially those based on pharmacogenomics testing have proved to be extremely useful for type A adverse drug reactions Clinical practice guidelines based on biomarker testing are presently being developed and updated for type A adverse drug reactions In contrast little attention has been paid to the potential use of biomarkers in type B adverse reactions characterized by the occurrence of reactions not directly related to the pharmacological properties of the drug Drug induced hypersensitivity belongs to those type B reactions Drug induced hypersensitivity reactions involve complex mechanisms that include among others the metabolic activation and haptenization of drug metabolites Hence factors that influence the pharmacokinetics of drug and metabolites may contribute to the development of some drug induced hypersensitivity reactions This implies that processes such as ADME absorption distribution metabolism and excretion that are typically involved in type A adverse drug reactions may have a role in hypersensitivity reactions too In addition to metabolic activation several signal transduction pathways participate and modulate the development and the clinical presentation of drug hypersensitivity The diverse mechanisms underlying such drug hypersensitivity reactions lead to four major groups of reactions according to the Gell and Coombs classification immediate cytotoxic immune complex and delayed The enormous complexity of drug hypersensitivity reactions is a consequence of the variety of mechanisms involved which may be related among others to drug metabolism generation of antigenic signals stimulation and maturation of dendritic cells presentation of haptens and mechanisms of cytotoxicity In addition a plethora of possible clinical presentations exists including urticaria angioedema anaphylaxis cytopenias nephritis serum sickness vasculitis contact dermatitis drug rash eosinophilia and systemic symptoms Stevens Johnson syndrome toxic epidermal necrolysis and acute generalized exanthematous pustulosis The rapid progress in the field in recent years indicates that the combination of several disciplines is essential to understand the mechanisms involved in this particular and not completely understood type of adverse drug reactions The objective of this Research Topic is to present insights obtained from both basic and clinical scientists which may include studies related to the identification validation refinement and clinical implementation of biomarkers for drug induced hypersensitivity The Topic aims to include recent findings related but not limited to potential phenomic genomic proteomic metabolomic and signal transduction biomarkers These biomarkers could eventually be used in clinical practice and or these might contribute as a proof of concept to our understanding of the complex events leading to drug hypersensitivity reactions In addition the Topic will cover recent developments and methodological advances in the diagnosis prevention and therapeutic management of drug induced hypersensitivity
