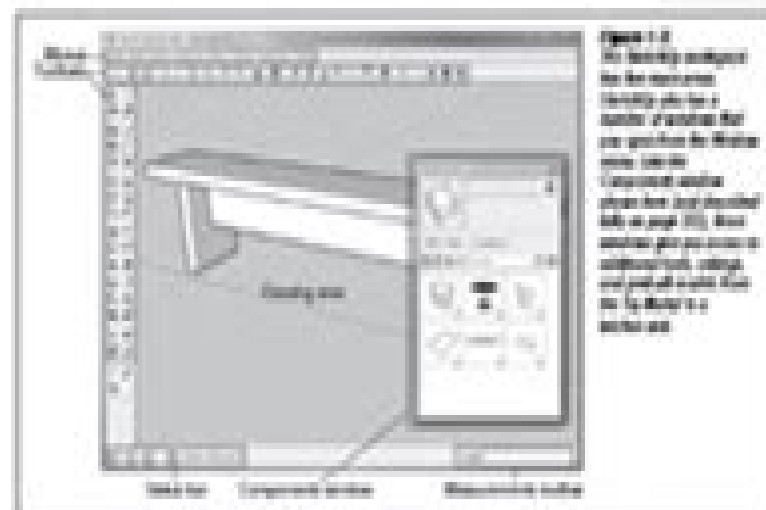

Figure 1-1: The SketchUp window. The SketchUp window is the main window for the software. It contains a 3D view of the model you are working on, a toolbar, and a menu bar. The Component window is a separate window that displays the components of the model. The SketchUp window is the main window for the software.

In addition to the five main windows, SketchUp uses several different windows, such as the Component window that's open in Figure 1-1. You can open and close these as needed by using the Window menu. With the tools in these windows, you'll apply color and shading to your models, select prefabricated components, add shadows and lighting effects, and export your project.

What's New

Don't Be Afraid to Play

When you get started, you'll see a lot of windows. Don't be afraid to play with them. The SketchUp software is designed to be easy to use, and you can learn a lot by just clicking around. The SketchUp software is designed to be easy to use, and you can learn a lot by just clicking around.

It's a good idea to explore some of the windows from the start, but don't worry if you don't understand everything at first. The SketchUp software is designed to be easy to use, and you can learn a lot by just clicking around.

SketchUp's menu bar is styled with the most popular, such as File, Edit, Window, and Help. SketchUp's View menu is a little different from the ones in most programs (Figure 1-2). The View menu has items in the SketchUp window that you can show or hide, including things like the drawing guides, wire frame, measurement tools, and view different models. If you're looking for tools that change over time of the SketchUp window, such as a View or the tool, look under the View menu.
