O'Donohue, 2018-07-25 The first volume of its kind this provocative book evaluates the construct of cultural competence from multiple perspectives At the intersection of diverse disciplines and domains contributors argue for greater clarity in understanding the cultural competence construct a deeper level of analysis as to its multifaceted components and call for concrete practical objectives and science based means of measurement Serious nuanced discussion addresses challenges strengths and limitations of current cultural competence practice in terms of sociocultural concepts e g race ethnicity and practical concepts e g sensitivity in the therapeutic relationship treatment efficacy In addition contributors identify future directions for research training and practice with the potential to spur the further evolution of this clinically important construct This timely book Critiques the cultural competence construct and its evaluation as it is currently disseminated within applied psychology Compares and contrasts how cultural competence is defined within clinical school and counseling psychology Analyzes difficulties and challenges in understanding the cultural competence construct as evaluated through the lens of closely related fields outside of applied psychology Spotlights complexities in cultural competence issues pertaining to specific populations Sets out implications for education and training offering a detailed outline for an ideal college course in cultural competence With this level of reasoning and rigor Cultural Competence in Applied Psychology is sure to stimulate long overdue dialogue and debate among professionals across a wide variety of fields such as clinical psychology social work child and social psychology psychotherapy school psychology and counseling

Rebounding Marine Mammal Species and Conservation Recovery Challenges Andrea Bogomolni, Kristina Cammen, Jennifer Jackman, 2025-03-19 Marine mammals have been valued for millennia for their cultural significance and more often their exploitative resource value Many large whale species remain imperilled or are only recently returning from the brink of extinction In contrast recent conservation measures have allowed for the successful rebound and recovery of many cetaceans and pinniped species some to the point of perceived overabundance whether referring to 1 200 Hawaiian monk seals or 7 million harp seals In addition to their continued intrinsic value alive and thriving today we also appreciate the value of marine mammal species to ecosystem health Yet as we grapple with a lack of historical baselines and uncertain ecological and social carrying capacities several conflicts are emerging at the growing interface between humans and marine mammals These conflicts include ship strikes depredation bycatch impacts of ecotourism competition for resources changing cultural values and political challenges to marine mammal conservation Despite the emergence of theory and application of human dimensions of wildlife in the terrestrial realm the rebound of marine mammals and how we address these conflicts in the coastal and ocean environment are often overlooked when discussing human wildlife conflict issues and solutions This Research Topic aims to increase awareness of these issues to advance the discussion on how we can address these challenges in ocean systems Conflicts with rebounding populations of marine mammals have emerged across diverse ecological sociological economic and political contexts Conflicts often arise from assessing how marine mammals fit into the human world based on the baseline understanding of one s own personal experiences or specific community contexts rather than broader and complex ecosystems understanding or historical context How do we address these emerging complex socio ecological problems related to marine mammals Who defines the problems and how are the problems defined How do we consider often opposing values and interests in the development of solutions and how do we engage diverse stakeholders in decision making processes that shape how we will manage and coexist with marine mammal populations for generations to come How can different disciplines help build the knowledge foundation and strategies necessary to address these challenges
