Raised Up Down Yonder Angela McMillan Howell, 2013-11-08 Raised Up Down Yonder attempts to shift focus away from why black youth are problematic to explore what their daily lives actually entail Howell travels to the small community of Hamilton Alabama to investigate what it is like for a young black person to grow up in the contemporary rural South What she finds is that the young people of Hamilton are neither idly passing their time in a stereotypically languid setting nor are they being corrupted by hip hop culture and the perils of the urban North as many pundits suggest Rather they are dynamic and diverse young people making their way through the structures that define the twenty first century South Told through the poignant stories of several high school students Raised Up Down Yonder reveals a group that is often rendered invisible in society Blended families football sagas crunk music expanding social networks and a nearby segregated prom are just a few of the fascinating juxtapositions Howell uses personal biography historical accounts sociolinguistic analysis and community narratives to illustrate persistent racism class divisions and resistance in a new context She addresses contemporary issues such as moral panics regarding the future of youth in America and educational policies that may be well meaning but are ultimately misguided

Re-visioning Science Education from Feminist Perspectives Kathryn Scantlebury, 2010 Further these women work in educational institutions that have higher status and prestige than their sisters in elementary middle or high schools Second female professors are bearded mothers Women who have engaged in science education value rationality and logic and assume authority as participants in academe The use of logic the acceptance of authority and the assumption of power are masculine gender stereotyped characteristics This situation places women in a paradox because others including peers and students expect them to display stereotypic female gender dispositions such as mothering nurturing sacrificing their needs for others and a commitment to the institution

Local Contextual Influences on Teaching Esther Boucher-Yip, Patrick Ng, 2014-10-16 This volume is a collection of personal narratives and research findings by English language ESL EFL teachers who found themselves in one way or another teaching in various contexts all over the world The central theme throughout these narratives is how contextual factors played a role in their approach to language teaching in different ways The contributors reflect on their practices and provide an engaging discussion about how they deal with curriculum and classroom organization issues within the local context Readers can expect to learn and understand how ESL EFL teachers in this volume exercise their agency in teaching in a language classroom These teachers through their own unique stories and research findings reflect on how they responded to local contextual factors such as the learning culture national and school policies personal beliefs and attitudes towards pedagogy the sociolinguistic context of teaching the school culture and the wider sociopolitical context in which learning and teaching takes place Since the narrative approach has been placed center stage in teacher education as a method and an objective of inquiry the contributors adopt the narrative form to reflect and discuss their instructional practice
