Barnet and Stubbs' Practical Guide to Writing with Readings Sylvan Barnet, Marcia Stubbs, 1995-03 Readings in Writing Courses Richard C. Raymond, 2010-12-01 As the title suggests this six chapter book responds to a question which in Western culture goes back to Plato Aristotle Cicero and Quintilian namely What should rhetoric teachers ask their students to read Primarily historical the first two chapters trace conflicting answers to the question above focusing on two constructive results of the debate the re invention of rhetoric and writing as a discipline a coherent and growing body of knowledge and as a result the emergence of independent departments of writing free from departments of English free therefore to develop their own curriculum and to manage their own budgets Additionally the second chapter examines two destructive consequences of this debate the ban of literature from writing courses where students might profitably study both and as a result the often painful departmental splits which not only separate former colleagues but also cramp the pedagogy of those trained to teach both writing and literature More than a survey of key publications this chapter encourages readers to honor the discipline of rhetoric but to make a place for literature on their composition syllabi The next four chapters provide pedagogical support for these chief claims that literature can and should be taught in writing courses and that such readings need not distract students from the primary text their own writing On the contrary these readings motivate serious writing when students feel invited into a conversation on issues that touch their lives These pedagogical chapters then move entering professionals from the theoretical debate to the application of theory therefore the book would serve well professors of courses in composition theory particularly those who enjoy teaching the conflicts and preparing their graduate students to design assignments and courses that apply theories of learning reading and composing Writing to Respond to Text and Tests Martha Joseph Watts, 2015-07-15 Writing to Respond to Text and on Tests is a revised edition of Writing to Respond Cultivating a Habit It highlights the academic vocabulary that students address on each step of the process and it encourages students to take charge of their critical thinking skills Students are coached into formulating questions to steer their writing responses This unique feature makes the process practical for all student groups on the middle and high school levels This process tackles all the English Language Arts Shifts identified by the Common Core States standards Reconnecting Reading and Writing Alice S. A Scientific Approach to Writing for Engineers and Scientists Robert E. Berger, 2014-05-23 A SCIENTIFIC APPROACH TO WRITING Technical ideas may be solid or even groundbreaking but if these ideas cannot be clearly communicated reviewers of technical documents e g proposals for research funding articles submitted to scientific journals and business plans to commercialize technology are likely to reject the argument for advancing these ideas The problem is that many engineers and scientists entirely comfortable with the logic and principles of mathematics and science treat writing as if it possesses none of these attributes The absence of a systematic framework for writing often results in sentences that are difficult to follow or arguments that leave reviewers scratching their heads This book fixes that problem by presenting a scientific approach to writing that mirrors the sensibilities of scientists and engineers an approach based on an easily discernable set of principles Rather than merely stating rules for English grammar and composition this book explains the reasons behind these rules and shows that good reasons can guide every writing decision This resource is also well suited for the growing number of scientists and engineers in the U S and elsewhere who speak English as a second language as well as for anyone else who just wants to be understood
