Marine Debris in Indonesia. Ecology, Social, and Economic Aspects Noir P. Purba, Zuzy Anna, 2021-04-23 Anthology from the year 2020 in the subject Environmental Sciences language English abstract Contamination of the world's oceans due to marine debris especially human engineered materials is a global problem and a challenge for many countries especially those with coastal communities Marine debris has entered a new chapter since the international and national conferences were held since the 1950s The UN United Nation in the environmental sector is known to explicitly state that marine debris has damaged the seas and oceans for a long time and has an impact on all areas of life Currently more than 1 2 trillion plastic bags are used every year around the world for daily needs About 2 million plastic bags are used every minute worldwide and around 32 million tons of plastic waste are generated annually representing 12 7% of total solid waste Every resident in Indonesia produces an average of 800 plastic bags per year This means that the use of plastic has become a necessity for humans However it is not balanced with a reduction or how it can be reused Poor waste management especially in developing countries is one problem challenge that must be addressed by the government Almost all developing countries do not have complete infrastructures and legal regulations for waste management For example in a country like Indonesia the recycling rate of waste is low at under 50% The awareness not to litter is also a cause for concern Garbage is easily found in gutters roads rivers and coasts Cumulated Index Medicus ,1989 Whale-watching James Higham,Lars Bejder,Rob Williams,2014-03-27 Within little more than a generation whale watching has been subject to global industrial development It has been portrayed by destinations and business operators and advocated by environmental groups as a sustainable activity and an alternative to whaling However in recent years the sustainability of these activities has increasingly been questioned as research shows that repeated disturbance by boat traffic can severely disrupt critical behaviours of cetaceans in the wild Bringing together contributions by international experts this volume addresses complex issues associated with commercial whale watching sustainable development and conservation of the global marine environment It highlights widely expressed concerns for the failure of policy planning and management and pinpoints both long standing and emerging barriers to sustainable practice Featuring numerous case studies the book provides critical insights into the diverse socio cultural political economic and ecological contexts of this global industry highlighting the challenges and opportunities that arise along the pathways to sustainability Tourism, grade 10 ,2006 Travel and Tourism T.
