Michelle Cliff's Abeng 1995 from the British Caribbean islands. Section four is an in-depth analysis of their plight in novels written by contemporary mulatto writers from Europe such as Marie N Diaye's Among Family 1997, Zadie Smith's White Teeth 2000 and Bernardine Evaristo's Lara 1997. Finally the last section of the book is a study of novels from West African and South African writers. The analysis of Monique Ilboudo's Le Mal de Peau 2001, Bessie Head's A Woman Alone 1990 and Abdoulaye Sadji's Nini 1947 concludes this literary journey that takes the readers through several continents at different points in time. Overall this comprehensive study of mixed race characters in the literature of the African diaspora reveals not only the old but also the new ways they decline, contest and refuse racial clichés. Likewise the book unveils how these characters resist, create, reappropriate and revise fixed forms of identity in the African diaspora of the 20th and 21st century. Most importantly it is also an examination of how the authors themselves deal with the complex reality of a multiracial identity.

Humiliation, violence se conjuguent avec

souffrance ! Dolorès Trompat, 2011-08. Noyau familial qui explose, relations parents-enfants, couteau tiré, une misère qui augmente autant que l'indifférence, son gardien, une condition féminine loin de s'améliorer et encore ces flaux que sont les drogues, l'alcool, la surconsommation. L'état des lieux de notre société française dressé par Dolorès Trompat est alarmiste, direct, parfois terriblement brut. Mais certainement nécessaire pour que nous ouvrons les yeux, pour que nous comprenions que nous partons la dérive et pour qu'enfin nous tendions la main à ceux qui en ont le plus douloureusement besoin. Le temps n'est plus l'ignorance et l'aveuglement. Il n'est plus envisageable d'assister au délitement des relations humaines et c'est sans doute en raison de cette urgence que la prose de Dolorès Trompat se fait si intransigeante, exclamation, indignation, révolte. Des termes percutants sans concession qui foudroient la conscience endormie avant de remettre en branle chez elle la volonté de faire bouger les choses.

Complicity in Fin-de-siècle Literature

Helen Craske, 2025-05-17. Complicity in Fin de siècle Literature examines late nineteenth century French understandings of literature as a morally collusive medium which implicates readers, writers and critics in risky or illicit ideas and behaviour. It considers definitions of complicity from the period's evolving legal statutes, critical debates about literary bad influence and modern theories of reader response in order to achieve a deeper understanding of how cultural production of the period forged relationships of implication and collusion. While focusing on fin de siècle French culture, the book's theoretical discussions provide a new terminology and conceptual framework through which to analyse literary influence and reception applicable to different historical periods and national settings. Interdisciplinary in nature, the study draws on methods associated with close reading, literary history, law and literature studies, cultural studies and sociology of literature. Each of the book's chapters highlights how particular literary themes or techniques encouraged readers' identification with transgression and facilitated alternative forms of solidarity. The analysis draws on a range of case studies from different media forms including Naturalist, Decadent and psychological novels, biographically revealing fiction, romans clefs, little magazines, petites revues and saucy magazines, revues légères. Texts written by well known literary figures such as mile Zola Octave Mirbeau and Rachilde appear alongside previously overlooked periodical and archival sources The book s varied corpus reveals the widespread appeal of risqu topics and illicit solidarity across the literary spectrum

Mémoires Et Comptes Rendus de la Société Royale Du Canada Royal Society of Canada,1893

French Prose in 2000 ,2021-10-18 French Prose in 2000 stems in some important measure from work presented in September 1998 at the International Colloquium on French and Francophone Literature in the 1990 s held at Dalhousie University A good number of papers given at that time and since revisited in the light of exchanges join here certain others specifically written for the purposes of this book Together they constitute a wide ranging and modally varied interrogation of the current state of French and francophone prose writing its multifaceted manners its richly divergent fascinations its many theoretical or philosophical groundings The book thus ceaselessly moves its attention from fictional biography to the roman noir from the writing of Glissant and Chamoiseau to that of the tonnants voyageurs from the powerful discourse of women such as Chawaf or Cond Ernaux or Germain Sallenave or Kristeva to that of writers as diverse in their modes as Le Clzio and Quignard Duras and Renaud Camus All chapters focus however in near exclusive measure on the prose production of the last ten or twelve years

The World and Its Rival Kathryn Karczewska,Tom Conley,2023-11-27 This volume assembles a wide range of scholars and critical methodologies to suggest multiple interpretations of the vital connection linking literary imagination and the human experience of reality In varying ways and with varying intent it speaks to the essential experience of participating in imaginative worlds offering different accounts of how language signifies in real and imaginary contexts and why people read and write rival realities Taking as point of departure Aristotle s definition of poesis it questions how literature stands in both mimetic and transformative relation to the givens of history reworking them within the order of imagination and desire Through historical linguistic and literary analysis of texts spanning nine centuries it demonstrates how though it is irreducible to reality literary imagination conveys something very real about the human response to the world including the knowledge and power proper to such experience neither history nor lie it discloses a reality purged of extraneous detail making what is essential to human experience more concentrated and dramatic Thus made apparent is that literature and history do not exclude each other but inform correct and supplement each other underscoring the complexities of thought and imagination

Medieval Violence Hannah Skoda, 2013-02-21 Medieval Violence provides a detailed analysis of the practice of medieval brutality focusing on a thriving region of northern France in the late thirteenth and early fourteenth centuries It examines how violence was conceptualised in this period and uses this framework to investigate street violence tavern brawls urban rebellions student misbehaviour and domestic violence The interactions between these various forms of violence are examined in order to demonstrate the complex and communicative nature of medieval brutality What is often dismissed as dysfunctional behaviour is shown to have been highly strategic and socially integral Violence was a performance dependent upon the spaces in which it took place Indeed brutality was contingent upon social and cultural structures At the same time the common stereotype of the thoughtlessly brutal Middle Ages is challenged as attitudes towards violence are revealed to have been complex troubled and ambivalent Whether violence could function effectively as a form of communication which could order and harmonise society or whether it inevitably degenerated into chaotic disorder where meaning was multivalent and incomprehensible remained a matter of ongoing debate in a variety of contexts Using a variety of source material including legal records popular literature and sermons Hannah Skoda explores experiences of and attitudes towards violence and highlights profound contemporary ambiguity concerning its nature and legitimacy Chaucerian Play Laura

Kendrick, 2023-11-15 In Chaucerian Play Comedy and Control in the Canterbury Tales the author examines the intricate relationship between laughter fiction and the human condition in Chaucer's work Drawing on Baudelaire's assertion that humor reflects humanity's fallibility and serves as a coping mechanism for imperfection the book explores how Chaucer's humor operates as both a tool for navigating life's uncertainties and a form of artistic expression Despite medieval religious skepticism toward humor and storytelling seen as distractions or falsehoods Chaucer's Canterbury Tales embraces comedy and laughter inviting readers to question their ethical and social implications By employing theories from thinkers like Freud and Huizinga the study demonstrates how Chaucer's humor and fictional play address existential fears transform chaos into order and provide a framework for cultural reflection The stories in the Canterbury Tales particularly those blending comedy and moral complexity like the Pardoner's Tale and the Miller's Tale encourage audiences to engage actively with the text uncovering deeper insights beneath the laughter The study situates Chaucer's storytelling within the broader human need for art and fiction as a form of solace during periods of crisis such as the Black Death Chaucer's playful narratives serve not only to entertain but to help audiences process societal anxieties offering an ordered space where chaos can be imaginatively controlled The Canterbury Tales creates a dynamic literary game where each tale interacts with others provoking laughter while addressing serious moral and philosophical questions This duality reflects the enduring power of storytelling to comfort and transform By framing laughter as a denial of reality and a means of reasserting control Chaucerian Play positions Chaucer's work as a profound exploration of the human need for meaning and connection highlighting the universal role of humor and fiction in confronting the complexities of life This title is part of UC Press's Voices Revived program which commemorates University of California Press's mission to seek out and cultivate the brightest minds and give them voice reach and impact Drawing on a backlist dating to 1893 Voices Revived makes high quality peer reviewed scholarship accessible once again using print on demand technology This title was originally published in 1988

Case Suspension and Binary Complement Structure in French Julia Herschensohn, 1996-02-29 Adopting the theoretical framework of the minimalist program this study of syntactic limitations on complement configuration investigates the link between thematic external arguments and case Using evidence from pronominal psychological experiencer and inalienable constructions it argues that both accusative and dative are structural cases in French and that this duality is reflected in a parallel limit on argument projection Larson's single complement hypothesis which allows a maximum of two internal arguments provides the theoretical justification for this proposal The testing ground for the binary hypothesis is a group of nonthematic subject constructions involving undative as well as unaccusative verbs linking according to Burzio's generalization case suspension and lack of an internal argument The investigation of these constructions and those involving partitive case provides not only a theoretically significant contribution to our understanding of grammar but also a motivated explanation for a number of empirical problems in French

Coquettes, Wives, and Widows Marcie Ray, 2020 A revelatory study of how composers and dramatists of seventeenth and eighteenth century France criticized and trivialized independent women in their portrayals of them in works of theater and opera

Robert Guédiguian Joseph Mai, 2017-04-07 On one level this book provides a concise and comprehensive account of Robert Guédiguian's numerous films combining meticulous stylistic analyses with historical political and generic context But more deeply it makes the case that Guédiguian's work represents one of the most discretely original and radical projects of contemporary French cinema When Marius et Jeannette 1997 made Guédiguian a household name in France most viewers were unaware that the film's freshness was the product of a project that Guédiguian had started in 1981 and that continues today to make politically committed films with friends predominately in a local space over a long period of time Starting with an in depth consideration of the philosophy of friendship and its relation to politics relation time and space this book traces this unique collaboration It starts in the Estaque neighborhood of

Marseille and unfolds through the political transformations of the 1980s the local activism of the 1990s and spreads through Gu diguian s diverse experimentation with genres and registers It emphasises Gu diguian s political assessments and his frequent meditations on history violence and utopia But it returns consistently to the underlying themes of friendship and thus intervenes at the crossroads of affect politics philosophy and art
