

Saguaro Cactus

The saguaro (pronounced sub-WAR-oh) cactus can grow up to forty feet tall, making it the largest cactus in North America. It is sometimes called the “sentinel of the Southwest” because of how it resembles a giant standing person. It has a thick, straight stalk with branches or “arms” growing off it that bend upwards, as if they had elbows.

The only place where the saguaro grows is the Sonoran Desert, which spreads across much of Arizona and Mexico plus the southern edge of California. The reason it can flourish in such hot, dry weather is that it is mostly a vessel for storing water. A full-grown, saturated saguaro can weigh almost 5,000 pounds! If the temperature is too low or the elevation is too high, saguaros cannot grow.

Saguaros have roots underground that grow outward rather than downward. A cactus with a height of twenty feet, for example, might have roots that are only a few inches deep, but they radiate out from the plant twenty feet in every direction. The heavy cactus is able to stand up straight and tall for years on end because of “ribs” that run inside it; made of a wood-like substance, they act like a skeleton. Native Americans used these ribs for building because they were as strong as wood. The ribs also made good splints to support broken bones. Like most cacti, the saguaro have sharp spines that can grow up to three inches long. Native tribes used these spines as needles for tattooing and sewing. The oldest spines are found at the base of the cactus.
