Gamboa, 2016-07-01 Desperate for laborers to keep the trains moving during World War II the U S and Mexican governments created a now mostly forgotten bracero railroad program that sent a hundred thousand Mexican workers across the border to build and maintain railroad lines throughout the United States particularly the West Although both governments promised the workers adequate living arrangements and fair working conditions most bracero railroaders lived in squalor worked dangerous jobs and were subject to harsh racial discrimination Making matters worse the governments held a percentage of the workers earnings in a savings and retirement program that supposedly would await the men on their return to Mexico However rampant corruption within both the railroad companies and the Mexican banks meant that most workers were unable to collect what was rightfully theirs Historian Erasmo Gamboa recounts the difficult conditions systemic racism and decades long quest for justice these men faced The result is a pathbreaking examination that deepens our understanding of Mexican American immigration and labor histories in the twentieth century U S West      The Great Plains During World War II R. Douglas Hurt, 2008-06-01 An in depth examination of the effects of World War II on the Great Plains states brings to life the voices and experiences of the residents of the region in recounting the stories of the daily concerns of ordinary people

Impact of War on Federal Personnel Administration Gladys M. Kammerer, 2014-07-15 World War II made enormous and unprecedented demands upon the nation s civil service administration The task of recruiting millions of new employees of almost every skill in the midst of military and industrial drains upon manpower and the necessity of maintaining efficiency and morale jarred personnel agencies loose from peacetime routine Both the older establishments such as the War and Navy departments and the new war service agencies such as the Office of Price Administration were affected Gladys M Kammerer believes that the war effort would have been seriously hampered had not the Civil Service Commission in spite of obstacles managed to retain control of this vast expansion During 1944 and 1945 Kammerer was able to examine in person the manpower operations of the Civil Service Commission and of four executive agencies War Navy Agriculture and OPA Her study is based on observations made at this time upon interviews with staff members and upon Civil Service Commission records Especially significant are her evaluations of changes good and bad which war brought to personnel administration and an analysis of their effect upon postwar policies and organization Research and Statistics Report , Andrew D.
