[Introduction]

[Opening sentences to indicate topic and context]

Each of the World Wars acted as a catalyst for women's rights and roles in society. In WWI, many women were asked to take on traditionally male roles in order to support the war industry and to keep up production of other goods and services that typically were considered in a man's domain. [Indicate an outside source for contextualization over and above the provided sources]. In Britain, in the decades leading up to the first World War, views of women were heavily based on the image and person of Queen Victoria. She was considered almost angelic in her role as "mother," "wife," and "feminine woman." Queen Victoria was lauded as the prime example of virtuous woman and mother; after her husband King Albert died, she denied involvement in politics, and instead became a secluded, devoted mother at Balmoral Castle. Through her actions and the image she presented to her nation, she was held up as a standard for women to attain. The demands of wartime at the outset of WWI, however, prompted women to reconsider their position in society; there was, of course, pushback from male political leaders and commoners alike. It is evident that women were expected to remain submissive and supportive, feminine and nurturing. Many men at the time concluded that women had neither the mental capability or social responsibility to participate in politics. The resistance to women's political rights was rooted, therefore, in a misogynist bias against women's participation outside the home and men's inherent right to be in charge.

[First paragraph - supports the thesis that a pre-existing bias created the tension between traditional views of women, and women's demand for political equity]

Bias against women in the work force was often based on misperceptions, or a fabricated idea about what a woman "shouldn't" be. Although men seemed to be threatened by the emerging female workforce during the course of WWI, in fact, women's involvement in
