Prusek, 2012-12-06 The studies contained in this volume arose over the last thirty years Originally the range of the materials I intended to include in my selection was very much wider Publishing difficulties however have obliged me to curtail them to something less than half the planned content At first I intended to include all the studies I supposed might be of interest to readers and represent contributions still of some significance for research in this domain of Oriental scholarship When the necessity arose to limit the contents I gave preference to the standpoint of thematic completeness rather than to what would be of interest to the general reader Thus in this volume I have confined myself to two thematic fields only Old Chinese literature and studies dealing with mediaeval storytellers productions hua pen I have excluded the whole complex of historical studies and all studies relating to the new literature I am now preparing on the principal historical theme on which I was engaged already in the period of my studies in Prague under Prof J Bidlo and then in 1928 till 1930 with Prof B Karlgren in Sweden and Prof G Haloun in Halle in Germany a more compendious study in which I hope to sum up the results of my research and I also intend to publish a volume of selected studies dealing with the New Chinese literature at some later date Remaking the Male Body Joan Tumblety, 2012-10-04 Remaking the Male Body looks at interwar physical culture as a set of popular practices and as a field of ideas It takes as its central subject the imagined failure of French manhood that was mapped out in this realm by physical culturist experts often physicians Their diagnosis of intertwined crises in masculine virility and national vitality was surprisingly widely shared across popular and political culture There was a hygienist and sometimes overtly eugenicist conception of physical exercise and national strength that suggests the persistence of fin de siècle preoccupations with biological degeneration and regeneration well beyond the First World War Joan Tumblety traces these patterns of thinking about the male body across a seemingly disparate set of voices all of whom argued that the physical training of men offered a salve to France's real and imagined woes In interrogating a range of sources from get fit manuals and the popular press to the mobilising campaigns of popular politics on left and right and official debates about physical education Tumblety illustrates how the realm of male physical culture was presented as an instrument of social hygiene as well as an instrument of political struggle In highlighting the purchase of these concerns in the interwar years the book ultimately sheds light on the roots of Vichy's project for masculine renewal after the military defeat of 1940 Minority Groups in the Republic of Vietnam American University (Washington, D.C.).
