

Human Blood Cell Typing

What did you learn?

What?

Antigen-antibody reactions in human transfusions are the basis used to select compatible human blood groups, where compatibility is the ability to transfuse blood successfully to the body, or vice versa, to prevent damage and death. All patients for transfusion, blood and blood cells, must be typed to determine compatibility. Blood typing is the process of identifying which blood cells are compatible with the donor's blood cells for transfusion.

Activity 1 – How Blood Cells and Antibodies

	Person with Blood Type A	Person with Blood Type B	Person with Blood Type AB	Person with Blood Type O
Cell with attached antigen
Antibody produced
Cells to the person's own blood transfused
Cells to the person's own blood not transfused

1. Blood is not typed because transfusions are determined by the presence or absence of antigens on the surface of cells and antibodies.

2. According to Activity 1, (person with blood type A) blood is found to the following antibodies:

Anti-B antibodies

3. When blood is transfused to (person with blood type B) transfusion is: compatible

Antibodies

4. When transfusion is type A and blood cell there is type B and blood cell:

Agglutination and clumping of blood cells are the result of the agglutination of antibodies to antigens on the surface.
