Procedures

Part A. Analyzing a Karyotype

1. Observe the normal human karyotype in Figure 1. Notice that the two sex chromosomes, pair number 23, do not look alike. They are different because this karyotype is of a male, and a male has an X and a Y chromosome.

Figure 1

2. Identify the centromere in each pair of chromosomes. The centromere is the area where each chromosome narrows.

Part B. Using a Karyotype to Identify a Genetic Disorder

1. Study the human chromosomes in Figure 2 on page 125. Notice that 23 chromosomes are numbered 1 through 23.
2. To match the homologous chromosomes, look carefully at the unnumbered chromosomes. Note their overall size, the position of the centromere, and the pattern of the light and dark bands. Next to the unnumbered chromosome that is most similar to chromosome 1, write 1.
3. Repeat step 2 for chromosomes 2 through 23.

Cold Spring Harbor Symposia on Quantitative Biology Cold Spring Harbor Laboratory of Quantitative Biology, 1957 Folia Biologica , 2001 The Principles of Clinical Cytogenetics Steven L. Gersen, Martha B. Keagle, 2008-08-17 In the summer of 1989 one of us SLG along with his mentor Dorothy Warb ton attended the Tenth International Workshop on Human Gene Mapping The me ing was held at Yale University in celebration of the first such event which also took place there This meeting was not open to the general public one had to have contributed to mapping a gene to be permitted to attend The posters of course were therefore all related to gene mapping and many were covered with pretty colorful pictures of a novel fluorescent application of an old technology in situ hybridization Walking through the room Dorothy remarked that because of this new FISH technique ch mosomes which had become yesterday s news were once again back in style Approximately three years later a commercial genetics company launched a FISH assay for prenatal ploidy detection A substantial number of cytogeneticists across the country reacted with a combination of outrage and panic

Many were concerned that physicians would be quick to adopt this newfangled upstart test and put us all on the unemployment line. They did not at the time realize what Dorothy instinctively already knew that FISH would not spell the doom of the cytogenetics laboratory but it would rather take it to new heights.
