Disseminating Behavioral Research Annette K. Griffith, Tyler C. Ré, 2023-12-09

Dissemination is a key component of the research process. While several fields have developed resources dedicated to training and supporting their scientists and practitioners as they are encouraged to disseminate within their fields and to the larger public audience, there has been a lack of formal guidance for dissemination within the behavioral sciences. Disseminating Behavioral Science aims to fill that gap, providing guidance across modalities for topics ranging from the peer review process to conference presentation to nontraditional avenues for dissemination. The contents of this edited text, divided across six sections, serves as a roadmap for students, junior researchers and senior scholars. The first section includes types of academic scholarship, types of dissemination and strategies to ensure ethical dissemination. The second reviews traditional publication preparation including tips for the writing process and key components to include in each section of a scientific manuscript. Section Three explores publication within a traditional peer-reviewed journal. Section Four outlines additional strategies to get research publicly recognized through conference presentations, social media and popular media sources and white and grey literature. Sections Five and Six offer a consolidated glossary of all key terms in the text and combined reference list.

Peer review in scientific publications Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: Science and Technology Committee, 2011-07-28 This report indicates that the oversight of research integrity in the UK is unsatisfactory The Science and Technology Committee concludes that in order to allow others to repeat and build on experiments researchers should aim for the gold standard of making their data fully disclosed and made publicly available The report examines the current peer review system as used in scientific publications and the related issues of research impact data management publication ethics and research integrity The UK does not seem to have an oversight body for research integrity covering advice and assurance functions across all disciplines and the Committee recommends the creation of an external regulator It also says all UK research institutions should have a specific member of staff leading on research integrity The report highlights concerns about the use of journal Impact Factor as a proxy measure for the quality of research or of individual articles Innovative ways to improve current pre publication peer review practices are highlighted in the report including the use of pre print servers open peer review increased transparency and online repository style journals The growth of post publication peer review and commentary also represents an enormous opportunity for experimentation with new media and social networking tools which the Committee encourages There should also be greater recognition of the work sometimes considered to be a burden carried out by reviewers by both publishers and employers In order to do this publishers need to have in place systems for recording and acknowledging the contribution of those involved in peer review
