Burris, 2015-03-17 A public school principal's account of the courageous leaders who have dismantled the tracking systems in their schools in order to desegregate classrooms What would happen if a school eliminated the tracks that rank students based on their perceived intellectual abilities Would low achieving students fall behind and become frustrated Would their higher achieving peers suffer from a watered down curriculum Or is tracking itself the problem A growing body of research shows that tracking doesn't increase learning for the minority and low income students who are overrepresented in low track classrooms This de facto segregation has led many civil rights advocates to argue that tracking is turning back the clock on equal education As a principal at a New York high school Carol Corbett Burris believed that the curriculum for the best students was the best curriculum for all She helped lead a bold plan to eliminate tracking from her school and the results couldn't have been further from the doom and gloom scenarios of tracking proponents Instead there was a dramatic improvement in the achievement of all students across racial and socioeconomic divisions and a near elimination of the achievement gap Today due to those efforts International Baccalaureate English is the twelfth grade curriculum for South Side students and all students take the same challenging courses together to prepare them for college In On the Same Track Burris draws on her own experience on the experiences of other schools and on the latest research to make an impassioned case for detracking Not only does the practice of tracking fail to benefit lower tracked students as Burris shows but it also results in the resegregation of classrooms Furthermore she argues that many of today s popular reforms emanate from the same sort and select mentality that reinforces social stratification based on race and class On the Same Track is a rousing controversial and yet optimistic account of how we need to change our assumptions and policies if we are to live up to the promise of democratic public education Only by holding all students to the same high standards can we ensure that all have the same opportunity to live up to their full potential

Early Language Learning in Context David Hayes, 2022-08-19 This book critically analyses early school foreign language teaching policy and practice foregrounding the influence of the socioeducational and cultural context on how policies are implemented and assessing the factors which either promote or constrain their effectiveness It focuses on four Asian contexts Malaysia South Korea Sri Lanka and Thailand while providing a discussion of policy and practice in Canada and Finland as a comparison Concentrating on the state school sector it criticises the worldwide trend for a focus on English as the principal or only foreign language taught in primary schools founded on a rationale that widespread proficiency in English is important for future national success in a globalised economy It maintains that the economic rationale is not only largely unfounded and irrelevant to the language learning experiences of young children but also that the focus on English exacerbates system inequalities rather than contributing to their reduction The book argues for a broader perspective on language learning in primary schools one that values multilingualism and knowledge of regional and indigenous languages alongside a more diverse range of foreign languages This book will appeal to educational policymakers researchers and students interested in early foreign language learning in state educational systems worldwide
