education was initiated by Herman Schneider at University of Cincinnati in the United States. Today it is known as Cooperative Education which is commonly included within the umbrella term of Work Integrated Learning and broadly referred to by the World Association of Cooperative Education (WACE) as Cooperative and Work Integrated Education (CWIE). Its development worldwide has been closely related to the socioeconomic background of the region. This book offers the first attempt to focus on the development of CWIE in Asia. To date, the development of CWIE in the Asia region has been slow compared to their counterparts. The analysis follows international comparisons of China, Japan, Korea, Hong Kong, Vietnam, Thailand, Malaysia, and Singapore on their educational history, vocational education, CWIE, and future issues. Although the level of development varies among them, there is no doubt that this region as a whole is experiencing a rapidly growing global demographic and economic prominence. CWIE can and to some extent already does play an important supportive role as part of growth. The book goes on to conclude that in order to enable further successful expansion of CWIE and improve its best practice, it is imperative to establish national and regional associations for CWIE as well as establish collaborative research activities across the region with governmental funding support.

Ugandan English
Christiane Meierkord, Bebwa Isingoma, Saudah Namyalo, 2016-10-20
Ugandan English is a variety that has scarcely been noticed in past research. This timely volume brings together African and European scholars in a first-ever collection of articles that offer comprehensive discussions of the historical and present-day sociolinguistics of English in Uganda and fine-grained analyses of the structural characteristics of and attitudes to this hitherto largely unknown variety. Using rich archive corpus and interview data as well as ethnographic and observational methods, the various contributions paint a comprehensive picture of Ugandan English as distinct from other East African Englishes and as characterized by nativisation despite a still strong exonormative orientation reflecting the modern nation's status as a post-protectorate under the influence of globalisation. Apart from advancing our understanding of Ugandan English itself, the individual chapters contribute to theoretical debates on language contact and variation as regards the influence of substrate languages, founder populations, language ideologies, and socio-economic factors.
