The Great Gatsby's Wealth and Its Hollow Pursuit of Daisy
<https://studycorgi.com/money-and-wealth-in-the-great-gatsby/>

you have to have the latest in technology in all areas of your life, from your car stereo to your cell phone. You also have to know how to dress well in expensive clothes, use the right product in your hair and, whether you're male or female, have your nails properly manicured.

The end result of all this focusing on exterior details and material wealth is that no one has time to develop deeper attributes. The soul is left to atrophy because it is given no real sustenance. For example, if a man drives up to a restaurant to meet a girl in a rusty old car, she instantly decides that she doesn't like him and shuts him out for the rest of the evening. She doesn't even hear his remark that he's driving the 'rust-bucket' as a means of remembering his grandfather who recently died and is planning to get the car fixed up as a classic. People who don't have a lot of money but have a lot of inner worth are passed over as insignificant in favor of the empty shell of a person who has all the cash and flash but none of the inner fire. Ironically, it's often only the people who don't have a lot of money who manage to find their way to a greater truth and a more fulfilling sense of value. They learn the intrinsic personal benefits of helping out another person, for example, and discover the greater value of self-knowledge and self-worth. While a great many people wander around America with all the necessary accomplishments of the 'American dream', they remain unhappy with their lives and feeling empty. They blame this on their jobs, on their spouse, on their children, and on their parents, but never take the time to look inside to find the value they're missing.

20 Martin Luther University language English abstract The Lost Generation is a term which encompasses a broad range of American authors who were born around 1900 Amongst those litterateurs are many who are said to be among the most influential and important writers in the history of American letters This term paper shall examine what historical circumstances constituted the common adventures and common attitudes of that generation as reflected in Fitzgerald's novel The Great Gatsby The term The Lost Generation was given by Gertrude Stein an authoress of note and contemporary of both Fitzgerald and Hemingway who used her quotation you are all a lost generation as the epigraph for his novel The Sun Also Rises What is meant by the attribute lost Why was this dismal term applied to the young adults of the 1920s an era of prosperity and freedom in America How did Fitzgerald depict this lost world in The Great Gatsby with respect to material abundance on the one hand versus spiritual poverty on the other The zeitgeist of an era inevitably shapes the human beings who live in it how they act what they look like and what they think the meaning of their lives in particular and humanity in general might be Therefore it is necessary to explore the 1920s in America in order to understand fully the meaning Fitzgerald communicates in The Great Gatsby This paper will therefore investigate several characteristics of the decade which are relevant for the interpretation of the novel The parameters to be surveyed are society in general the materialism wealth and industrialization which created that society Prohibition as one of the most significant elements of the 20s the faltering faith in God as but one example of the failure of institutions that were supposed to be a refuge for human beings and the loss of faith in the American dream and other t

The deconstruction of the american dream in "The Great Gatsby" Tobias Rösch, 2008-07-17 Seminar paper from the year 2006 in the subject American Studies Literature grade 1.0 University of Freiburg Englisches Seminar course Modernism and the American Fiction language English abstract Robert Frost a contemporary of Francis Scott Fitzgerald once said that poetry is a way of taking life by the throat In Fitzgerald's fabulous novel The Great Gatsby published in 1925 this seems to be the author's intention when in a largely poetic tone he depicts life in the so called Roaring Twenties He took life by the throat and simultaneously pointed at social injustices that were accompanying the economic prosperity of his time Fitzgerald's masterpiece primarily deals with the American upper class in the 1920s and demonstrates some of the internal processes of high society In the novel representatives of the upper class are engaged in acts of egotism self aggrandizement and heartlessness Their ubiquitous lack of empathy and understanding for the concerns of others their downright brutality and self centeredness pervades the whole storyline and gives proof of the author's rather pessimistic view of what was then going on in contemporary America In the center of things stands the character after whom the novel is named Jay Gatsby He is a rather prototypical upstart American who within a short period of time has found ways and means to make a fortune His wealth is derived mainly from bootlegging and other criminal activities that are left concealed to the reader At any rate Jay Gatsby comes in touch with the seducing realm of opulence at a very early stage when aged 17 he encounters destiny for the very first time The event that would shape his whole life and leave an imprint on his mind is a chance meeting with Dan Cody a rich mining tycoon who cruises across Lake Superior in his yacht Tuolomee named after the gold fields of Northern California<sup>1</sup> some day From this day on Gatsby's life will never be the same the seed of aspiration has been planted in the young man's heart together with a deep conviction that in the future he might be able to display his wealth in a similarly urbane fashion as Cody did He is willing to model his life on Cody's and maybe even outstrip him if given the opportunity But wealth can hardly be obtained in North Dakota where James Gatz who changes his name after the fateful encounter with Dan Cody grows up In order for people to make a fortune and turn their lives into a success story as Benjamin Franklin or Abraham Lincoln did they have no choice but to travel east New York City is the place to go
