Saldaña Zorrilla, PhD, 2015-07-04 This work responds to the increasing global need of measuring and analyzing impacts, vulnerabilities, and coping capacity of countries, regions, and communities regarding climate change, extreme weather conditions, natural disasters, and institutional constraints. The case of Mexico analyzed in this work provides lessons for further developing countries to assess natural disasters' vulnerability for making informed adaptation decisions and to optimize resources for reducing country and community vulnerability. This book's analyses contribute to the current debate of the long-term economic impact of natural disasters (hurricanes, earthquakes, etc.) as well as offer an integral methodology combining natural and social sciences for studies of country and community level vulnerability to climate change. The lessons derived from this analysis provide useful elements for the design and improvement of governmental policies concerning social and economic development as well. In addition, the desegregation of this analysis has the advantage of facilitating the design and evaluation of governmental projects at municipal, sub-national, and national level, as well as provides conceptual, empirical elements for international cooperation in matters of disaster risk reduction, climate change adaptation, rural development, and poverty reduction. associated with natural phenomena such as earth quakes floods droughts etcetera are intensifying damages that translate into deaths the loss of infrastructure and the interruption of economic activities The accelerated growth of cities frequently incorporates new areas that are susceptible to certain hazards leaving society increasingly exposed due to a mismanagement of land Since the 1990s the social sciences have developed the approach of vulnerability which considers the conditions of weakness of a society to cope with hazards We now know that risk is socially constructed and so disasters are not only a result of the intensity of the geophysical phenomena that unleash them but also of the contexts of vulnerability present when a phenomenon takes place The aim of this work is to show how the risk of flood disasters is constructed in Tijuana Baja California with four main elements as our starting point An examination of floods since the late 19th century the voice of the actors present for flooding events a theoretical model to understand the relationship between the hazard and the magnitude of the risk and recommendations for disaster risk management at a local level Statistics on Water in Mexico ,2014
