Design and Political Dissent Jilly Traganou, 2020-10-27 This book examines through an interdisciplinary lens the relationship between political dissent and processes of designing In the past twenty years theorists of social movements have noted a diversity of visual and performative manifestations taking place in protest while the fields of design broadly defined have been characterized by a growing interest in activism The book's premise stems from the recognition that material engagement and artifacts have the capacity to articulate political arguments or establish positions of disagreement Its contributors look at a wide array of material practices generated by both professional and nonprofessional design actors around the globe exploring case studies that vary from street protests and encampments to design pedagogy and community empowerment projects For students and scholars of design studies urbanism visual culture politics and social movements this book opens up new perspectives on design and its place in contemporary politics

The Politics of Green Transformations Ian Scoones, Melissa Leach, Peter Newell, 2015-01-09 Multiple green transformations are required if humanity is to live sustainably on planet Earth Recalling past transformations this book examines what makes the current challenge different and especially urgent It examines how green transformations must take place in the context of the particular moments of capitalist development and in relation to particular alliances The role of the state is emphasised both in terms of the type of incentives required to make green transformations politically feasible and the way states must take a developmental role in financing innovation and technology for green transformations The book also highlights the role of citizens as innovators entrepreneurs green consumers and members of social movements Green transformations must be both top down involving elite alliances between states and business but also bottom up pushed by grassroots innovators and entrepreneurs and part of wider mobilisations among civil society The chapters in the book draw on international examples to emphasise how contexts matter in shaping pathways to sustainability Written by experts in the field this book will be of great interest to researchers and students in environmental studies international relations political science development studies geography and anthropology as well as policymakers and practitioners concerned with sustainability

Microbial Role in the Carbon Cycle in Tropical Inland Aquatic Ecosystems André Megali Amado, Fábio Roland, 2017-03-15 Aquatic microorganisms are tidily related to the carbon cycle in aquatic systems especially in respect to its accumulation and emission to atmosphere In one hand the autotrophs are responsible for the carbon input to the ecosystems and trophic chain On the other hand the heterotrophs traditionally play a role in the carbon mineralization and since microbial loop theory may play a role to carbon flow through the organisms However it is not yet clear how the heterotrophs contribute to carbon retention and emission especially from tropical aquatic ecosystems Most of the studies evaluating the role of microbes to carbon cycle in inland waters were performed in high latitudes and only a few studies in the tropical area In the prospective of global changes where the warm tropical lakes and rivers become even warmer it is important to understand how microorganisms behave and interact with carbon cycle in the Earth region with highest temperature and light availability This research topic documented microbial responses to natural latitudinal gradients spatial within and between ecosystems gradients temporal approaches and temperature and nutrient manipulations in the water and in the sediment
