Follow Matt's journey through professionalism, vacations gone wrong, and career highlights. About the author: Matt Hribar is a social and digital storyteller, DJ, live events emcee, and adjunct professor in Communications. He has devoted his life to creating, whether it's manuscripts, poems, lyrics, music, podcasts, videos, and films. Narayan, 1980-10-15 English teacher Krishna has recently married, but his wife and daughter live miles away. The story begins with his immediate family deciding to join him. Bertha Pappenheim, 1859-1936, a friend of Freud's wife in Vienna, is regarded as the first patient of psychoanalysis. It was she who invented the concept of the talking cure under the care of Josef Breuer in Vienna, where she was being treated for hysteria, anorexia, paralysis, hallucinations, phantom pregnancy, suicidal thoughts, and morphine addiction. Breuer published her case history, Fraulein Anna O, in 1895, and it is considered the first significant document in the history of psychoanalysis. It is the first case of psychoanalytic literature, introducing Breuer and Freud's Studies on Hysteria. In 1888, Bertha Pappenheim published anonymously her first book of five fairy tales, Little Stories for Children (Kleine Geschichten für Kinder). These tales have never been translated before nor have they appeared in German since their original publication. They reflect on Pappenheim's treatment, dealing with guilt, evil, and death. They are not just for children but also serve as parables for adult visions. They allowed Pappenheim to be reborn, transformed, serving as a kind of writing cure. In 1890, she published another collection of fairy tales, In the Junk Shop (In der Trodelbude). In these nine tales, nine domestic objects tell their tales of woe and misery to each other as if they were engaged in a nocturnal therapy session. BOOK JACKET Story-Based Selling Jeff Bloomfield, 2014-06 As a founder of a successful organization that trains and develops sales professionals, Jeff Bloomfield has given a lot of thought to why customers say yes In Story Based Selling Create Connect and Close Mr Bloomfield says it s really no mystery People buy from people they trust They trust people they like and they like people they connect to And he believes that storytelling is the best way for salespeople and all of us to immediately connect to a customer s feelings of trust and liking He thinks teaching sales professionals to close a deal by presenting their product probing its mutual benefits and overcoming the customer s objections and skepticism is a waste of time Instead he urges them to tell a great story Mr Bloomfield calls upon the latest research in neuroscience to explain the process of communication The truth is that during the salesperson s engagement with clients people quickly base their decisions on how they feel not the way they think so trying to persuade someone by first imparting lifeless facts and figures is self defeating In fact this information goes right to an area of the listener s brain the left brain that drives doubt and skepticism To make a deal we need to connect with the parts of the customer s brain that inspire emotions of trust and empathy By telling a story we can immediately connect to these good gut feelings and drive away the client s fear of being sold Mr Bloomfield tells his own engaging stories while teaching step by step techniques of intentional storytelling to create a fast connection with the listener no matter who is buying or what a person wants to sell
