Heat Transfer M. Becker, 2012-12-06 There have been significant changes in the academic environment and in the workplace related to computing Further changes are likely to take place At Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute the manner in which the subject of heat transfer is presented is evolving so as to accommodate to and indeed to participate in the changes One obvious change has been the introduction of the electronic calculator The typical engineering student can now evaluate logarithms trigonometric functions and hyperbolic functions accurately by pushing a button Teaching techniques and text presentations designed to avoid evaluation of these functions or the need to look them up in tables with associated interpolation are no longer necessary Similarly students are increasingly proficient in the use of computers At RPI every engineering student takes two semesters of computing as a freshman and is capable of applying the computer to problems he or she encounters Every student is given personal time on the campus computer In addition students have access to personal computers In some colleges all engineering students are provided with personal computers which can be applied to a variety of tasks A User's Manual for the Irrigation Production Data System (IPDS) Glenn David Schaible, 1989

E. Sutcliffe, Heinz-Detlev Koch, Annette McElligott, 1996 The task of language engineering is to develop the technology for building computer systems which can perform useful linguistic tasks such as machine assisted translation text retrieval message classification and document summarisation Such systems often require the use of a parser which can extract specific types of grammatical data from pre defined classes of input text There are many parsers already available for use in language engineering systems However many different linguistic formalisms and parsing algorithms are employed Grammatical coverage varies as does the nature of the syntactic information extracted Direct comparison between systems is difficult because each is likely to have been evaluated using different test criteria In this volume eight different parsers are applied to the same task that of analysing a set of sentences derived from software instruction manuals Each parser is presented in a separate chapter Evaluation of performance is carried out using a standard set of criteria with the results being presented in a set of tables which have the same format for each system Three additional chapters provide further analysis of the results as well as discussing possible approaches to the standardisation of parse tree data Five parse trees are provided for each system in an appendix allowing further direct comparison between systems by the reader The book will be of interest to students researchers and practitioners in the areas of computational linguistics computer science information retrieval language engineering linguistics and machine assisted translation
