Banking in India's Hinterland Moin Qazi, 2024-04-22 Banking in India's Hinterland isn't your typical how-to guide. Instead, it's a compelling account of the author's experiences as a rural banker in India. Through personal stories, the book sheds light on the struggles of impoverished communities, particularly the strength and resilience of poor rural women. The author argues there's no one-size-fits-all solution to poverty. He emphasizes the need for local experimentation and a deep understanding of local contexts. His core belief lies in gradual change and empowering the poor, especially women, through financial resources and education. The book offers a hopeful message. The author, based on his three decades of experience, believes poverty can be tackled by equipping the underprivileged with the tools they need to break free from the cycle.

Constructing the Stable State Kathleen H. Hawk, 2002-08-30 The United States and the international community intervened in a number of internal conflicts throughout the 1990s, generally justifying their actions on humanitarian grounds. In most cases, the external military intervention largely halted the fighting and allowed humanitarian assistance to be distributed. However, as Hawk makes clear, simply halting the fighting has not allowed these countries to create stable governments and harmonious societies. This study is based on the premise that if external actors—foreign governments, international organizations, and private groups—can not figure out how to lay a foundation for a stable, longer-term peace, there will be decreasing support for international intervention and peacekeeping/peacebuilding missions in the future. Although external actors have undertaken many activities in the aftermath of a military intervention in an attempt to consolidate peace, sufficient attention has not been paid to reconstructing the state as a capable, effective, and legitimate entity. While reconstructing the state is only a portion of what needs to be done to bring about a stable, long-term peace, it provides a necessary foundation upon which to structure the other activities. Through her examination of external actions in Somalia, Bosnia, and Kosovo, Hawk draws 23 lessons, nine of which are applicable to interventions in general, and the remaining 14 specific to statebuilding efforts. This study will be of particular interest to scholars, students, and policymakers involved with conflict resolution and international relations.

Venice and the Dalmatian Hinterland Lena Sadovski, 2024-12-23 This volume offers a source-based analysis of the complex interactions between the Venetian administration of the coastal town of Spalato (Split) and its hinterland under Venetian, Hungarian, and Ottoman rule. Employing a microhistorical approach, Sadovski studies the military importance, economic dynamics, and social changes in the Dalmatian hinterland in the later medieval period. This book also explores multilingualism, highlighting how Slavic languages, as well as local laws and customs, were integrated into the Venetian administration. In doing so, it broadens our understanding of the Venetian maritime empire and proposes a new way of thinking about hinterlands in cultural, social, linguistic, and legal terms, alongside economic and political aspects.

Chinese Hinterland Capitalism and Shanxi Piaohao Luman Wang, 2020-09-21 This book examines Shanxi piaohao private financiers from the Chinese hinterland in the economic and business history of late imperial China, forming the original theory of Chinese hinterland capitalism Deepening the existing understanding of capitalist dynamics at work in the families and financial institutions of late imperial China the book foregrounds the expansionist role played by Shanxi piaohao in transforming China's market and trade from an agrarian empire to a modern nation state In a departure for economic history it also focuses on the histories of the people and their lifeworlds behind financial institutions which have previously been erased by universal capitalist narratives Persistent binary oppositions between coastal areas and hinterland state and market and institutions and families are each transcended in recounting the local histories of global capital in the marginalized countryside and borderlands of China Based on a wealth of archival material and correspondence with Shanxi piaohao offices and branches Chinese Hinterland Capitalism and Shanxi Piaohao will appeal to students and scholars of Chinese and economic history anthropology and postcolonial studies more generally

Arabia Without Sultans Fred Halliday, 2013-10-04 Fred Halliday writes The Arab Middle East is probably the most misunderstood of all regions the one with the longest history of contact with the west yet it is probably the one least understood Part of the misunderstanding is due to the romantic mythology that has long appeared to shroud the deserts of the peninsula Where old myths have broken down new ones have absorbed them or taken their place Now the Sheikh of Arabia has stepped down from his camel Instead through the delusive lens of the energy crisis he is seen to be riding a Cadillac and squeezing the powerless Western consumer of oil First published in the 1970s Arabia Without Sultans retains its validity for the present as it analyses the Arabian peninsula and Iran within the global context of western post colonial strategy and the political economy of oil Halliday offers a thorough study of the history the politics and the economy of this region in an ambitious encompassing and entertaining manner This classic work remains indispensable for students academics and all those who wish to have a greater understanding of the Arabian peninsula A well documented work written by an author who knows the language of the area Maxime Rodinson Halliday provides an unusual view point and a well documented description of the history of these states Middle East International Anyone interested in this area will want to read this International Affairs A most valuable account of the developments which have taken place in the Arab Gulf over the last hundred years Tariq Ali
