BRANCH RICKEY'S DECISION

Branch Rickey, the first African American manager in Major League Baseball, made a decision that would change the face of the sport. He signed Jackie Robinson to a contract with the Brooklyn Dodgers in 1947. This was a bold move, as baseball had been a segregated sport for decades. Rickey's decision was based on his belief that baseball should be a place where people of all colors could play together. He knew that Robinson was a talented player and a person of great character. Rickey's decision was not without controversy, but it was a decision that paved the way for the integration of baseball and the civil rights movement.
