Utilitarianism

Act Utilitarianism

- Based on the principle of happiness – “The greatest happiness for the greatest number”
- It is a teleological theory where the consequence of an action is the most important aspect of a decision opposed to the action itself
- The theory was devised by Jeremy Bentham and claimed that humans are motivated by pleasure and pain
- Pleasure is the sole good and pain is the sole evil (also known as hedonist utilitarianism)
- Right actions are the ones that produce the most happiness and pleasure
- The rightness and wrongness of an action is determined by its utility which is the amount of pleasure or pain caused by an action
- According to act utilitarianism the principle of utility must be applied to every situation as it is the consequence that is the most important aspect of a decision
- Bentham proposed Hedonic calculus to determine which actions lead to the most pleasure/pain

Hedonic calculus:

Bentham believed it was possible to give specific content to ideas about right or wrong by the reference of the amount of pleasure or pain involved in a situation

1. Duration – How long does it last?
2. Intensity – How intense is the happiness?
3. Remoteness – How near is it?
4. Certainty – How sure are we that it will come?
5. Purity – How free from pain is it?
6. Richness – How much will it lead to pleasure?
7. Extent – How many people will it make happy?

Bentham's approach is considered a quantitative approach as it does not take into account the quality of the happiness.

Strengths of act utilitarianism:

- It is common sense to think of consequences when making a decision therefore the theory aligns with our decision-making process
- It is straight forward as it is based on a single principle
- Secular theory – does not rely on religion to identify how we should act
- Impartiality – it is objective
- Maximises happiness – it is a good thing to strive for

Criticisms of act utilitarianism:

- Sees all pleasure as of an equal value – leaves the minority at the mercy of the majority rejecting human rights
- Needs both knowledge and time to make a decision using hedonic calculus
- It is difficult to predict the consequences
- There is potential to justify evil acts if it makes the majority happy for example gang rape – no absolute right or wrong

Jim and the Indians – Bernard Williams

- A man arrives in town to find ten innocent political prisoners about to be shot. Corrupt guard suggests he will release nine of the prisoners if the man shoots one of them himself
- A utilitarian would shoot the prisoner as that would save nine – promoting the most happiness
- Williams states that it ignores the problem of moral agency – an individual's ability to make moral judgments based on some notion of right and wrong and to be held accountable for these actions
