A Question of Worth Chris Steed,2016-09-14 We live in a world that has become a resource a world conditioned by the progressive domination of a monetary scale applied across the board Our value and worth are contingent upon what we earn on what we own Amidst the increasing financialisation that characterises much of the globe the prevailing ethos is that the only values we can usefully measure are those that can be quantified and expressed in terms of economics Yet economic value and the value of the human are closely connected erode the economic and you erode the personal In the global economic crash of recent years it has been people who have been under assault not just financial value The vulnerability of a society shaped solely by economic and monetised transactions is exposed when the economy and the monetisation of everything fails When the economic machine seizes up it is people who are devalued and dumped Drawing upon his experience in government education and the Church the author asks Must we be a market society as well as a market economy Can we devise a non economic account of describing human value and worth Christopher Steed argues that the really important issues that frame the contemporary human situation are those that cannot be measured Quality is also vital to human flourishing what after all is wealth for In this timely and important work the author calls for a wider concept of value one that encompasses both economic value and human value and for a society that cultivates the importance of the human

The Social Life of Materials Adam Drazin,Susanne Küchler,2020-06-08 Materials play a central role in society Beyond the physical and chemical properties of materials their cultural properties have often been overlooked in anthropological studies finished products have been perceived as social yet the materials which comprise them are considered raw or natural The Social Life of Materials proposes a new perspective in this interdisciplinary field Diverting attention from the consumption of objects the book looks towards the properties of materials and how these exist through many transformations in a variety of cultural contexts Human societies have always worked with materials However the customs and traditions surrounding this differ according to the place the time and the material itself Whether or not the material is man made materials are defined by social intervention Today these constitute one of the most exciting areas of global scientific research and innovation harboring the potential to act as key vehicles of change in the world But this materials revolution has complex social implications Smart materials are designed to anticipate our actions and needs yet we are increasingly unable to apprehend the composite materials which comprise new products Bringing together ethnographic studies of cultures from around the world this collection explores the significance of materials by moving beyond questions of what may be created from them Instead the text argues that the materials themselves represent a shifting ground around which relationships identities and powers are constantly formed and dissolved in the act of making and remaking access to the UK Parliament this book challenges how we understand and think about accountability between government and Parliament Drawing on three months of research in Westminster and over forty five interviews this book focuses on the everyday practices of Members of Parliament and officials to reveal how parliamentarians perform their scrutiny roles Some MPs become specialists while others act as lone wolves some are there to try to defend their party while others want to learn about policy Amongst these different styles chairs of committees have to try to reconcile these interpretations and either act as committee orientated catalysts or attempt to impose order as leadership orientated chieftains All of this pushes and pulls scrutiny in competing directions and tells us that accountability depends on individual beliefs everyday practices and the negotiation of dilemmas In this way MPs and officials create a drama or spectacle of accountability and use their performance on the parliamentary stage to hold government to account Dramas at Westminster Select committees and the quest for accountability offers the most up to date and detailed research on committee practices in the House of Commons following a range of reforms since 2010 Rankings and the Reshaping of Higher Education Ellen Hazelkorn, 2015-03-23

Transnational Mobility Catherine Gomes, 2016-12-01 The growing mobility of people within and into the Asia Pacific region has created environments of increasing diversity as nations become hosts to both permanent and temporary multicultural societies. The authors of The Asia-Pacific in the Age of Transnational Mobility turn to social media as a tool of inquiry to map how mobile subjects and minorities articulate their sense of community and identity. The authors see social media as a platform that allows users to document and express their individual and collective identities, sometimes in restrictive communication environments while providing a sense of belonging and agency.
