Expressivity in European Languages Jeffrey P. Williams,2023-09-07 There is an emerging perspective in the discipline of linguistics that takes expressivity as one of the key components of human communication and grammatical structure Expressivity refers to the use of grammar in natural languages to convey sensory information in a creative way for example through reduplication iconicity ideophones and onomatopoeia Expressives are more commonly associated with non European languages so their presence in European languages has so far been under documented With contributions from a team of leading scholars this pioneering book redresses that balance by providing copious detailed information about the expressive systems of a set of European languages It comprises a collection of original surveys of expressivity in languages as diverse as Hungarian Finnish Turkish Scots German Greek Italian Catalan Breton and Basque all with the common goal of challenging structuralist assumptions about the role of syntax and showing how expressivity is both typologically diverse and universal

Searching for Pop Michael R. Brookbank, 2018-08-21 At the age of 43 Thomas Brookbank volunteered to join the army in September 1914 just weeks after the start of the war and when the wounded from the first encounters with the German army at Mons and Le Cateau were arriving back in England There was nothing special about Tom Brookbank He was a painter and a decorator by trade but he was swept along in the surge of patriotism that drove hundreds of thousands of ordinary men and women to respond to the Kitchener's call for the raising of a great volunteer army an enterprise that most military men of the time friend and foe alike regarded as a ludicrous waste of time and money This much was known by family legend together with knowledge that he had gone to Italy in November 1917 with the 41st Division in response to the near collapse of the Italian army at Caporetto that he ended the war in Belgium with this Division Tom Brookbank need not have volunteered at all He was too old to be fighting a soldier and was well over the age group that Kitchener was calling for but there was also a need for men in the support services behind the lines the men of the Army Services Corps and this is where Tom Brookbank and fellow men like him ended up Early research showed that he did not start the war with the 41st Division so what happened to him what did he do and where did he go Searching for Pop is the story of a grandson's search for the answers to what he did and where he went between the time he volunteered and his discharge at the end of the war It illustrates what might be achieved from a very limited amount of initial knowledge by perseverance and the use of the records available in National Archives
