Abstract: Agave species are important for the production of ethanol and other products. The aim of this study was to evaluate the effect of different concentrations of gibberellins (GA₃) on the growth and development of Agave species. The results showed that the application of GA₃ at 100 mg/L significantly increased the height and diameter of the plants, as well as the number of leaves and the weight of the roots. The application of GA₃ at 100 mg/L also significantly increased the chlorophyll content and the photosynthetic rate of the plants. The results suggest that the application of GA₃ at 100 mg/L is the most effective concentration for promoting the growth and development of Agave species.
