University Bulletin University of California (System), 1977 Role of Islamic Religious Beliefs Mamoon Ali Dongula, 2017-08-31 The primary objectives of this dissertation are to analyze the relationship between insurance development and Islamic religious beliefs as an independent variable to highlight the importance of insurance in economic growth of developing countries to advance recommendations for promoting insurance in predominantly Islamic countries and to review the UAE United Arab Emirates potential for insurance development The findings and results arrived at by this study which were statistically significant apparently confirmed the proposed hypothesis that Islamic religious beliefs have significant adverse influence in insurance development in a given country as measured by all of the six chosen models of insurance penetration and insurance density The findings and results of this study are consistent with the findings and results attained by previous research studies in this area FOUNDATIONS OF EDUCATIONAL RESEARCH: METHODS AND APPLICATIONS Dr. Thimmaraju T. and Dr. Manjunatha B.K., 2024-04-26 Educational research is a systematic and organized inquiry into educational issues practices and phenomena aimed at generating knowledge improving educational processes and enhancing the overall quality of education It involves the application of research methodologies to explore various aspects of education ranging from teaching and learning methods to curriculum development educational policies and student outcomes Educational research contributes to evidence based decision making the advancement of teaching methods and the understanding of how educational systems work Hacienda and Market in Eighteenth-Century Mexico Eric Van Young, 2006-06-01 This classic history of the Mexican hacienda from the colonial period through the nineteenth century has been reissued in a silver anniversary edition complete with a substantive new introduction and foreword Eric

Van Young explores 150 years of Mexico's economic and rural development a period when one of history's great empires was trying to extract more resources from its most important colony and when an arguably capitalist economy was both expanding and taking deeper root. The author explains the development of a regional agrarian system centered on the landed estates of late colonial Mexico, the central economic and social institution of an overwhelmingly rural society. With rich empirical detail, he meticulously describes the features of the rural economy including patterns of land ownership, credit and investment, labor relations, the structure of production, and the relationship of a major colonial city to its surrounding area. The book's most interesting and innovative element is its emphasis on the way the system of rural economy shaped and was shaped by the internal logic of a great spatial system, the region of Guadalajara. Van Young argues that Guadalajara's population growth progressively integrated the large geographical region surrounding the city through the mechanisms of the urban market for grain and meat, which in turn put pressure on local land and labor resources. Eventually, this drove white and Indian landowners into increasingly sharp conflict and led to the progressive proletarianization of the region's peasantry during the last decades of the Spanish colonial era. It is no accident, given this history, that the Guadalajara region was one of the major areas of armed insurrection for most of the decade during Mexico's struggle for independence from Spain. By highlighting the way haciendas worked and changed over time, this indispensable study illuminates Mexico's economic and social history, the movement for independence, and the origins of the Mexican Revolution.

Methods of Animal Experimentation William I. Gay, 2013-09-03. Methods of Animal Experimentation Volume VI is a compendium of papers that defines which animals will prove most useful in biological experiments using the best methods in an environment of complex technologies and therapies. One paper reviews the genetic methods in animal experimentation including tests of Mendelian ratios, chromosomes, crossing over, chromosome anomalies, and gene transfer that produces congenic strains. Another paper explains the concepts and methodologies used in animals in ophthalmic research, particularly in ocular pharmacology, aqueous humor dynamics, glaucoma, and animal models of non-infectious uveitis. One paper analyzes the neural mechanisms of pain in an intact nervous system following ethical and moral principles of human treatment. For example, the use of different stimuli to elicit pain is applied only in situations where the stimuli is more appropriate, whether in behavioral or physiological experiments. The paper provides a list of requirements for the ideal pain stimulus. Another paper describes the methods in using standard animal models when an unknown agent is to be given as a general or local anesthetic. This book can prove beneficial to researchers, scientists, and laboratory technicians dealing with animals in relation to pharmacological, biological, chemical, and physiological research.
