At some point in your study of psychology, you may be required to write a case study. These are often used in clinical cases or in situations when lab research is not possible or practical. In undergraduate courses, these are often based on a real individual, an imagined individual, or a character from a television show, film, or book.

The specific format for a case study can vary greatly. In some instances, your case study will focus solely on the individual of interest. Other possible requirements include citing relevant research and background information on a particular topic. Always consult with your instructor for a detailed outline of your assignment.

Additions to the resources section and a new preface focusing more explicitly on the ever-growing number of part-time academics. Action Research in Teaching and Learning combines a theoretical understanding of the scholarly literature with practical applications and is an essential critical read for any individual teaching or undertaking action research.

Teaching Human Development for Educators M Cecil

Smith, Carlton J. Fong, Russell N. Carney, 2024-01-01 In an age where the quality of teacher education programs has never been more important, educators need a fundamental understanding of human growth, development, and change at different ages and stages across the life span. The present volume draws upon the latest research to help teacher preparation instructors select and convey essential content on human development. Such efforts serve to prepare education professionals to work with infants, children, adolescents, and adults across diverse educational settings. The chapters included in this volume summarize empirical research that supports the teaching of human development as it applies to PreK-12 and postsecondary settings, describe instructional practices used in college courses that are effective for teaching teachers in training about human development, and provide a systematic discussion of issues that influence the teaching of human development theories, research, and classroom applications. The contributing authors are accomplished educational and developmental psychologists that have years of experience in teacher preparation. Their respective chapters provide insights into the challenges that teachers in training confront in learning about human growth and development and how novice teachers can apply knowledge of human development in their professional practice.

Problem-solving Strategies for Writing Linda Flower, 1989

Power, Discrimination, and Privilege in Individuals and Institutions Sonya Faber, Monnica T. Williams, Matthew D. Skinta, Bia Labate, 2024-04-01

Individuals and systems are rife with prejudices leading to discrimination and inequities. Examples of this include rejection of stigmatized groups, e.g., Black Americans, Indigenous people in Canada, Roma peoples in Europe, structural racism, e.g., inequitable distribution of resources for public schools, disenfranchisement of women, employees, e.g., the glass ceiling, barriers to higher education, e.g., biased admissions requirements, heterosexism, economic oppression, and colonization. When we take a closer look, we find the core of the problem is imbalance in the distribution of power and its misuse.

Case Study Applications for Teacher Education Mary R. Sudzina, 1999 This book shares the personal stories of fifteen talented educators, their successes, shortcomings, and growing pains about teaching with case studies in 12 different content areas. Case studies are slices of life which illustrate a myriad of dilemmas from moral issues to classroom management.

Teaching with cases can offer educators a variety of opportunities to expand and extend their teaching skills problem solving abilities and grasp of contemporary issues in classrooms today Case discussions also offer a window into pre service in service or graduate students experiences opinions perceptions or misconceptions of educational dilemmas Resources examples assignments and cases are included For any pre service or in service teacher The Publishers Weekly ,1972

Time To Know Them Marilyn S. Sternglass,2017-09-25 In a time of declining resources in institutions of higher education we grapple with how priorities are to be set for the limited resources available Most vulnerable are those students labeled underprepared by colleges and universities Should we argue that the limited resources available ought to be used to support these students through their undergraduate years And if we decide that we want to do that what evidence of their potential for success can we provide that will justify the use of these resources Through longitudinal research that follows students who have been so labeled over all their college years we can begin to find answers to these questions Time to Know Them is the first book that follows the experiences of a group of students over their entire academic experience No previous studies have brought together the factors incorporated in this study examining writing and learning on a true longitudinal basis studying a multicultural urban population investigating the relationship between writing and learning by examining papers written over time for regularly assigned academic courses across a range of disciplines and taking into consideration non academic factors that influence academic performance such as race gender socio economic status and ideological orientation Through interviews twice a semester over six years the collection of papers written for all courses observations of instructional settings and analysis of required institutional tests of writing the author has been able to pull together a more complete picture of writing and intellectual development over the college years than has previously been available in any study Students are seen to acquire the ability to handle more complex reasoning tasks as they find themselves in more challenging intellectual settings and where risk taking and exploration of new ideas are valued The integration of students previous life experiences into their academic studies allows them to analyze critique modify and apply their previously held world views to their new learning These changes are seen to occur over time with instructional settings and support providing key roles in writing development Personal factors in students lives present difficulties that require persistence and dedication to overcome Never before have the complexities of real individual lives as they affect academic performance been so clearly presented International Labour Documentation ,1965 Counselor Education and Supervision ,1991
