There is very limited information on the genetic structure of Mytilus spp. (except for the fact that there is some genetic structure between M. edulis and M. galloprovincialis (Bergquist, 1982)). However, the fact that M. edulis and M. galloprovincialis are considered as two different species (Bergquist, 1982) suggests that there is some genetic structure between them. This is in contrast to the fact that M. edulis and M. galloprovincialis are considered as two different species (Bergquist, 1982).
