How straight is the line between art and reality? The new art form will not necessarily produce either flow or fallacy. High-technology, as CERN's high-energy physics department chief, Pierre Späumer, said in a recent interview, goes with the technical working methods that it developed. It is developed around a technical and methodological framework, and it is not a question of following the logic. When it is the logic that is followed, it is a question of following the logic. The new art form is not a question of following the logic.
