

8. (a) The purpose of the statement of earnings is to present information about the revenues, expenses, and the net earnings of the entity for a specified period of time, in order to help assess its financial performance during that period.
- (b) The purpose of the statement of financial position is to report the financial position of an entity at a given date, that is, to report information about the assets, obligations, and shareholders' equity of the entity as at a specific date.
- (c) The statement of changes in equity reports the way that net earnings, the distribution of net earnings (dividends), and other changes to shareholders' equity affected the company's financial position during the accounting period. The focus in this chapter is on retained earnings. Net earnings for the year increases the balance of retained earnings whereas the declaration of dividends to the shareholders decreases retained earnings.
- (d) The purpose of the statement of cash flows is to present information about the flow of cash into the entity (sources), the flow of cash out of the entity (uses), and the net increase or decrease in cash during the period.
9. The statement of earnings and the statement of cash flows are dated "For the Year Ended December 31" because they report the inflows and outflows of resources during a period of time. In contrast, the statement of financial position is dated "At December 31" because it represents the resources, obligations, and shareholders' equity as at a specific date, December 31.
10. Assets are important to investors and creditors because assets provide a basis for judging whether sufficient resources are available to operate the company. Liabilities are important to creditors and investors because the company must be able to generate sufficient cash from operations or seek further borrowing to meet the payments required by debt agreements. If a business does not pay its creditors, the law may give the creditors the right to force the sale of assets sufficient to meet the creditors' claims.
11. Net earnings is the excess of total revenues over total expenses. Net loss is the excess of total expenses over total revenues.
12. The accounting equation for the statement of earnings is $\text{Revenues} - \text{Expenses} = \text{Net earnings}$. Revenues result from the sale of goods and services to customers, regardless of the timing of collection of cash from customers. Expenses represent the monetary value of resources the entity used up, or consumed, to earn revenues during the period. Net earnings is simply the excess of revenues over expenses.
